Advisory board wants $8.20 minimum wage

FORT MADISON - A committee met to decide on the possibility of raising the minimum wage in Lee County. The committee was comprised of Matt Pilug and Don Hunold, members of the Lee County Board of Supervisors.

Don Hunold, Supervisor for the southeast Lee County, said, "We have to be careful here. We need to do something, but we can cause some havoc on what we have." Hunold said the issue is to be considered by Lee County Board of Supervisors.

While Mt. Pleasant found their moments Thursday, Fort Madison’s boys basketball team had most of theirs at top 5 team over the Bloodhounds’ lead. The Fort Madison Bloodhounds had contained the conference’s top scorer in Bradford Portis to six points in the first half... had contained a 6’9" Tom O’Connor and had leads as big as 11 points... with raising the minimum wage even to $8.25 to $9.00 and some that are $10 and up to $11 and whatever is left I pay to myself. My concern with raising the minimum wage is my private pay families. Those families that pay out of pocket for multiple children. I’m going to be forced to raise my rates and what’s the impact on them?"

"I’m also concerned about me raising rates. I have to receive the same amount of money from DHS and 65-70% are getting child care assistance. $1,900 per month is the maximum they can make and meet eligibility requirements and that is being able to afford child care. She said that pushing the wage even to $8.50 an hour would knock some people out of state aid and it would be more difficult to afford child care because they make an additional $50 or so a week, but could potentially lose $130 a week in state aid.

Currently I have two employees right above minimum wage - high schoolers. I have some at 8.25 to $9.00 and some that are $10 and up to $11 and whatever is left I pay to myself. My concern with raising the minimum wage is my private pay families. Those families that pay out of pocket for multiple children. I’m going to be forced to raise my rates and what’s the impact on them?"

"I’m also concerned about me raising rates. I have to receive the same amount of money from DHS and 65-70% are getting child care assistance. $1,900 per month is the maximum they can make and meet eligibility requirements and that is being able to afford child care.

Don Hunold outlined scenarios be called “cliffs” that exist by raising the minimum wage incrementally to where it results in a net loss for people in the county who are on state aid for food, child care, etc.

We have to be careful here. We need to do something, but we can cause some havoc on what we have," Hunold said.

Whitney Wagaman, owner of Rosie Posie Child Development Center told the committee that raising the minimum wage would result in her families possibly not being able to afford child care.

Sodium polyacrylate is super absorbent and will pick up the nitrates as water flushes them off the soil from nearby waterways, "she said. Walker presented her project to a cafeteria with about 40 people and students on Wednesday night. HTC Science Instructor Ernie Schiller said the presentation will serve as practice before presenting the project at the Southeast Iowa Superconference Science Fair coming in March and a science symposium at Iowa State University in April. "Sodium polyacrylate is super absorbent and it could be put to use in practical uses of her experiment, Walker said.

Next: U of Iowa Maggie Walker presents her project looking at the effect of sodium polyacrylate on nitrate absorption.

OPINION

Public workers deserve respect, not scorn

I woke up about 3 a.m. to a siren in the distance. I thought to myself: Car accident? Fire? Medical emergency? Somebody needs help right now! I also knew that siren meant skilled public servants were on the way to do just that.

I went back to sleep knowing that Iowans enjoy excellent local and state services that make Iowa and life as we know and enjoy it possible. This is all now under threat.

The gutting of Iowa working collective bargaining law last week by legislative Republicans, Governor Branstad and Lt. Governor Reynolds will begin a decline in public services and our schools as the best people find both respect and better pay in the private sector and fewer people decide public service is a respected career choice. It won’t happen overnight. But the seeds are now in the ground.

Our trained, skilled and educated public servants make it possible for businesses to profit and communities to prosper. Here is a short list of some of the things that some politicians are taking for granted:

• The inspection that made your home and workplace safe to occupy; a glass of clean water, running the dishwasher; washing the car; great schools and educated citizens; garbage, recycling and leaf pick up; snow plowing and road salting; street design, repair and maintenance; libraries, parks and pools; recreational trails and bike lanes; flood and tornado disaster relief; driver's licenses; voter registration and clean elections; marriage licenses; birth and death certificates; restaurant and hotel pool inspections; 911, police, fire, emergency medical help; crime investigation; prison guards and community corrections; community planning; airport safety; controlling infectious disease and food born outbreaks; controlling air and water pollution; nurses and doctors; researchers and of course, brushing your teeth and flushing the toilet.

Iowa public servants deliver. They have chosen to work for public employers because in exchange for their contribution, they are afforded a stable work environment, decent wages and health and retirement benefits. This has allowed our cities, counties, school districts, community colleges, public universities and the state to attract and retain some of the smartest people to serve us.

Why in the world have Republicans who now control all of state government become so mean-spirited and disrespectful of our skilled and dedicated public employees that do the hard work day and night? The bad news is that they are not done. They now intend to destroy the pension system public employees have paid in to and earned.

When you hear the next siren in the distance, be proud that we have trained public servants on the way to help. These workers are our neighbor and friends. They are taxpayers. They deserve respect and thanks, not scorn.

one child. They can’t make anymore than that to receive assistance. I have families that struggle to make copays and families that struggle to pay out of pocket. My daily rates are just shy of $27 a day, so I try to stay as affordable as possible, but it’s going to impact my families pretty hard. They’re not going to get paid anymore when the wages get raised. Those that pay out of pocket are gonna be the ones that take the brunt end of it."

“We need to do something here,” Pflug said. “We’re staying under the $8.22 that’s that cliff you’re talking about. But it gets us in there and that’s the key. At the end of the day we know $8.20 is not a livable wage.”

Robert Cale, who’s been helping organize the effort told Wagaman increasing the wage would help get people off subsidies.

“You’re subsidized in two ways. Your employees are getting subsidies and your families are getting subsidies. If you’re not willing to pay enough for your workers to be off state aid, why should the tax payers subsidize your business? If those wages were higher in Lee County we can get some of those people off state aid and stop subsidizing your business. “By raising the floor of the lowest paid workers in Lee County I think that’s a positive.”

Tracy Leone, organizer of the Iowa Federation of Labor suggested if Wagaman raised her prices $10 per week and a private-pay family makes $60 more per week with an increased wage they are still $50 ahead for the week.

Leone also mentioned House Study Bill 92 currently being considered in the Iowa House of Representatives that would make it illegal for cities and counties to set their own minimum wage. She encouraged the panel and the county to move on the wage before the legislature takes up the bill.

“The bill will actually make it illegal to set a wage higher than the state minimum. And they don’t have a bump in there as it is. We thought they might set a new minimum wage with that bill, but it’s not in there. It basically removes Home Rule,” she said.

“One other thing we have to consider, and it’s a big thing, is if the county passes this, but if a city doesn’t adopt it, the county just screwed themselves.”

Leone said cities can still establish their own wage outside of the county, similar to Solon who set a lower wage than Johnson County.

"I was at the hearing where they set the lower standard and there were business after business after business there saying they already pay higher wages because they value their employees," Leone said. The only company that went in there to lobby for the lower wage was Dairy Queen. A large corporation that employs teenagers or exploits them, whatever you want to say. The city then waived the 2nd and 3rd readings of the ordinance and passed the lower wage right there. You can be sure all of those councilmen will face a challenge during the next election. Two have already resigned.

“If Keokuk just wanted to do this they could but I think Mayor Marion said he supports an increase. Fort Madison could do it but they would do it at their own peril and this is an election year. Three months before they’re up for election. Would you vote for a guy that did that?”

The committee agreed to meet again next Wednesday at the Lee County Sheriff’s office to review the resolution before submitting it to the Supervisors.

Panthers use late run to end Hounds’ season at districts

Kaleb Cresswell moments later started the unraveling. Treavor James-Kokjohn drove to his right around Kieran Kohorst and Kohorst moved with Kokjohn around to the baseline when play was stopped on an offensive charge call. The unraveling continued. Austin Rose was bumped by O’Conner in the air on a five foot jumper with no whistle.

But Wilson kept the loss in house. “We got impatient... played in a hurry, panicked a little bit and at the end of the 2nd and 3rd quarters we weren't very good,” he said. “We’re up 11 with 1:20 to go in the half and go in up by six. We just got a little impatient, a little careless, and it came back to get us.”

The Hounds came out of the gate convinced this game would be different than the other two conference games when the Panthers won both games by an average of 31 points.

Kokjohn connected on a 3-pointer to open the scoring for both teams. Sartorius countered with a pull up jumper from the corner of the lane, then the Hounds went on a 9-2 run highlighted by five points from CJ Richardson. Sartorius again hit a short jumper to break up the run, but Cresswell countered with a 12-footer from the right to push the FM lead to 12-5 with 2:15 left in the first quarter. O’Conner then stepped out and connected on a 3-pointer to close the gap to two 12-10.

Senior Landon Bentley converted the back-end of two free throws and sophomore Logan Rashid penetrated and scored on a drive with a foul. He missed the freebie to give the Hounds a 15-10 lead at the end of 1.

Bentley then started the 2nd quarter with a running bucket in the lane from eight feet to start another 11-5 run for the Hounds that ended with a Richardson jumper to give the Hounds a 26-15 lead. Ita then tried to push the Panthers back to single digits as he scored nine of the Panthers next 11 points including unanswered back to back buckets with about four minutes left in the half to close the gap to seven. Kokjohn answered with a put back bucket to push the lead back to 10. Ita answered and Bentley hit a trey with 1:20 left to give the Hounds a 10 point lead. Fort Madison stopped the Panthers on the next possession and Kokjohn was fouled at the end converting the front end of the one-and-one to push the lead to 11.

But Jordan Magnani hit a 3 on the next possession, the Panthers held on the next possession down the floor and Magnani hit again before the end of the half to cut the lead to six at half.

“Mt. Pleasant wants you to play fast...that's what they want you to do to us,” said Wilson. “They got us in rush mode, we turned the ball over a couple of times to ice the game.

Have you played well the last two three weeks. I wish...I hope... these younger kids see how well we played during that stretch. We have to have this kind of play all 24 games of the year,” he said.

Richardson played varsity three years and two years as a starter. He doesn’t question you, he just does his job. Pound for pound that kid would go against an all-conference player,” Wilson said. “I'm proud of all three of these seniors... it's all just a process really. We got down in a little slump. If we would have been playing our best earlier this year this probably would have been better tonight,” he said. “They got us in rush mode, we turned the ball over... took bad shots and they just capitalized on that.”

Kokjohn said he regretted not playing up to Wilson’s expectations all year.

“Our last three games we really played the best basketball all year. I wish we would have done that earlier in the year. Listened to our coaches a little more,” he said. "They rushed us quite a bit. We needed to limit our turnovers and run our offense. But that's the No. 3 team in the state.”

Wilson said he was proud of how the team played down the stretch but said he hopes the younger kids coming up pay attention to what happened.

“They played well the last two weeks. I wish...I hope... these younger kids see how well we played during that stretch. We have to have this kind of play all 24 games of the year,” he said.

“Richardson played varsity three years and two years as a starter. He doesn’t question you, he just does his job. Pound for pound that kid would go against an O’Conner all day every day. That's just how the kid is,” Wilson said. “I'm proud of all three of these seniors... there's a lot of emotion wrapped up in that. I got emotional just walking over here. You always question yourself. What could I have done different...did I call the right timeouts. These are special kids, there's just something about them and it made it a little difficult. It's tough to talk about and it's gonna be tough to talk about at awards night... We had ‘em.”

The final scoring for the Hounds were Kokjohn with 17, Richardson with 11, Cresswell with nine, Bentley with eight, Rashid and Riles each had two points.

fields,” she said. “Land is treated with nitrates as part of the fertilization process, but it’s not so good for our waterways. If you put this in the form of a liner it could help pull the excess from the fields.”

She said there is nothing currently in use right now, but she would like to look into the cost effectiveness as part of future studies she performs.

“This is based on a project I started last year and expanded on this year. In the future I’d like to look deeper at practical uses and the cost efficiencies of working with this type of environmentally healthy idea,” she said.

Walker showed students tube samples as part of her video diary of the project and pointed out the different colors of the water as reflective of the amount of nitrates in the tubes and how the sodium polyacrylate helped reduce the amounts in the tubes.

The project was just one of many projects on display at HTC on Wednesday night. Other projects included looking at pH levels in saliva and the direct or indirect impact on hemoglobin A1c numbers in diabetic and non-diabetic studies, how proteins can effect blood glucose if consumed prior to carbohydrates, digestion, which toothbrush cleans your teeth better and stereotypes in criminal identification.

Students will take their projects to conference and regional competitions set for later this spring.
