City officials weigh in on proposed increase in county minimum wage

MONTROSE - A proposal to push the county's minimum wage is on hold as a committee gets additional information from the Lee County Attorney's office on a draft ordinance.

Robert Cale, a committee member on a panel that has been discussing proposing an increase in the Lee County minimum wage, had submitted a draft ordinance to Lee County Attorney Ross Braden for his review. The committee was then to submit the ordinance to the Lee County Board of Supervisors for action.

The committee got hung up on the youth employees and said Ross Braden take another look at the youth language to get the lobby area ready for patrons on Friday. His first venture into the theater business was in his own hometown.

"We'd always had a theater there, but it was managed poorly. Now this will end up being like a meeting place or gathering place, when you walk in the door you're always going to see people you know," he said Thursday.

Eisentraut said the digital movie industry kind of pushed the smaller markets out, but now things have evened out and the cost of showing the digital films is more competitive and he's seeing markets like this get back in the game.

"This market can support a theater. It's big enough and things are different in the industry now than they were even five years ago. With the advent of digital projection, movies are now more available to markets like this than they were," he said. "You used to have to strike a 35-millimeter print that cost a lot of money to do. While digital projectors are very expensive and the initial expense is greater, the business plan is better. Because movie companies can now produce for a few hundred dollars what used to cost $1,500. At $1,500 you don't make that decision to go into this size market until the larger markets have played it.''

Eisentraut said they've put a substantial amount of money into refurbishing the theater, but was very quick to say that former owners Larry and Trudy Wright did a wonderful job maintaining the building.

"Larry did a very very good job of maintaining the basic structure of this building. The foundation things are very good. The roof is in great shape, the basement has been completely cleaned and sealed. The HVAC systems are in great shape," Eisentraut said. "We can take care of the little things, lighting issues, things like that. This theater was a reality. Supervisor Don Hunold has been long and winding but he's happy to see the theater ready to roll and is looking forward to earning the business of moviegoers in the area. The Hughes brothers are former MMA competitors and have purchased and rehabbed five theaters in Iowa and Illinois in partnership with the Eisentraut family.

Mark Hughes, who has owned a construction company, was at the theater on Thursday rolling up his sleeves and helping get the lobby area ready for patrons on Friday.

CLOTILDA “TILLIE” STEFFENSMIEER

Tillie attended St. James School in St. Paul, Iowa. She was a farmer’s wife and mother. She was a member of St. John’s Catholic Church in Houghton. She enjoyed playing cards, sewing, crafts, painting, and baking with grandchildren. She was proud of her children and grandchildren, and followed them with their sports and education.

She is survived by seven sons: Chris (Mary) Steffensmeier, of Salem, Iowa; Ernest Jr. (Annette) Steffensmeier, of Fort Madison, Iowa; Gordon (Kathy) Steffensmeier, of Corvallis, Oregon; Craig (Jeanne) Steffensmeier, of Mt. Pleasant, Iowa; Glenn (Annette) Steffensmeier, of Hillsboro, Iowa; Douglas (Diane) Steffensmeier, of West Point, Iowa; and Gary (Margaret) Steffensmeier, of Farmington, Iowa; four daughters: Deborah (Ron) Becker, of Wever, Iowa; Michelle (Ted) Wenke, of Douds, Iowa; Brenda (Dave) Mieezter, of West Point, Iowa; and Colleen (Todd) Holder, of Raleigh, North Carolina; one daughter-in-law, Jennifer Steffensmeier, of Fort Madison, Iowa; one brother, Sylvester (Thelma) Kruse, of Hillsboro, Iowa; two sisters, Marcella Moore, of Fort Madison, Iowa and Agnes Stukerjurgen, of St. Paul, Iowa; 43 grandchildren, 28 great grandchildren, numerous nieces, nephews, and cousins. She was pre-ceded in death by her parents, husband, one daughter Melanie Steffensmeier, one son Ben Steffensmeier, four brothers: Lawrence, Walter, Joseph, and Albert Kruse; four sisters: Helen Schinstock, Gertrude Kruse, Cecelia Klesner, and Edna Kruse; and one great granddaughter, Adrianna Wanat.

A Rosary will be recited at 3:00 pm Monday, March 6, 2017 at St. John the Baptist Catholic Church, Houghton, Iowa. Visitation will be held from 5:30 – 7:30 pm Monday evening at the church with the Christian Vigil Service to be held at 7:00 pm during visitation. Mass of Christian Burial will be held at 10:30 am Tuesday, March 7, 2017 at St. John the Baptist Catholic Church, Houghton, Iowa with Reverend Bruce DeRammel as celebrant. Burial will be at St. John’s Cemetery, Houghton, Iowa. A memorial has been established, contributions may be left during the listed services or mailed to the Barr-Holtkamp Funeral Home and Cremation Services, P.O. Box 247, West Point, Iowa 52656.

Online condolences to the Steffensmeier Family may be made at the Barr-Holtkamp Funeral Home and Cremation Services website, www.barrholtkampfu

Your local theater is back starting Friday night

-Jeff Eisenraut

Eisenraut theatres

Swed will be living on the property and said they too think the theater will help give a boost to Fort Madison’s Main Street. Hughes said it was Chris that got the ball rolling with the theater. “He was up here visiting some people and told us it was for sale. He said we should get it,” Hughes said. Eisenraut said Swed was with him at an auction and made a commitment that, if they bought the Fox, he would come up and manage it. “I’ll have a management team right here on top of it. Literally these two will be living right upstairs.”

Maddie said movies will be held Thursday and Friday beginning at 7 p.m. and matinees on Saturday and Sunday.

WAGES

one that would actually decrease the wage of 65,000 workers in these counties that have raised it,” Cali said.

“The bill is House File 295, which prevents a city or county government from approving any language that sets a different minimum wage than the state.”

The bill, which started as House Study Bill 92, had a minimum wage set at 25% above the Jan. 1, 2017 federal minimum wage, which calculates to $9.06/hour. That specific language was removed when the study bill transitioned to the House File.

The language of the bill reads, “a city or county shall not adopt, enforce or otherwise administer an ordinance, motion, resolution or amendment providing for any terms or conditions of employment that exceed or conflict with the requirements of federal or state law relating to a minimum or living wage rate, any form of employment leave, hiring practices, employment benefits, scheduling practices or other terms or conditions of employment.”

Supervisor Matt Pflog who has been part of the committee’s work wasn’t at the meeting Wednesday night but was in favor of the rate at previous meetings.

Supervisor Rich Taylor (D-Mt. Pleasant) said he believes the bill did make it out of committee and is still in play in the House.

“I think that’s just crazy, I believe everyone should have a minimum state wage. If you want to go over that you should be able to. If you want to raise it you should be able to do that because the competition is greater in some areas than others. We’ve got that thing called Home Rule, we’re supposed to be able to make those decisions.”

Taylor said Home Rule will still be intact, but it’s certainly jeopardized by the bill.

“Home rule will still be there but what they are doing is picking away at it. For four years anything we did that took anything away from local law the Republicans would say, “Oh the heavy hand of government.” Now they seem to be just to fine with it,” Taylor said.

If the recommendation were to pass the county, cities and local governments within the county could take action on their own. Fort Madison City Councilman Kevin Rink said the issue is touchy.

“It’s gonna be hard for some employers. We have to ask ourselves if we really understand the need and will we gain jobs and will it do anything to boost the economy.”

Rink also pointed to automation reducing the number of employees, as well as possible price hikes to compensate for the increased wages.

“I was at Sam’s this weekend and there were self checkouts. Those things take jobs away. What are we compensating for the increased wages. Sometimes I think people just want to do those jobs.”

Fort Madison Partners Executive Director Tim Goble said he thinks the local governments should wait to see how the legislature plays out.

“It all depends on what the state allows the city to do. Really we should wait to see what the state says and go from there.”

Calls to other city councilman and the mayor went unanswered.
