High winds, storms damage east FM

FORT MADISON - Some in Fort Madison were awaiting...or awoke to, serious weather Monday night as a heavy thunderstorm blew through the area leaving some property damage in its wake. According to National Weather Service reports out of the Quad Cities, Fort Madison had a report of wind gusts as high as 64 mph at 10:30. Minimal hail was seen on the east end of town but the most damaging impact was on Brenda Derr’s building at 820 Avenue G. Derr said the membrane was blown up on the three-story building and then winds collapsed the roof into the third floor sending rain water gushing into an apartment and then pouring into the main floor that houses her business, Dollhouse Dreams. Derr said the water did extensive damage to the building’s structure and winds blew down a top portion of the fire wall that separates her building from the building to the east.

Water could still be seen dripping onto the main floor and saturated bubbles in the ceiling on Tuesday at about 11:30 as techs from ServiceMaster and employees helped clean up the damage. “We’re gonna have to do it all over,” Derr said of the ceiling. “We think the membrane flipped over and then the roof caved in. Joey Herren and Doug Kroemeier came in and they think the roof picked up and then came back down.” But she said she was moved and impressed by the efforts of local people in the Main Street District.

FORT MADISON street crews work to remove a large tree that was snapped off in the 500 block of Avenue E, just west of the Old Settler’s Park. High winds and a quick moving storm did moderate damage to the downtown district as well as leaving many branches in roadways and some in rural areas without power.

Supervisors to consider minimum wage bump Tuesday

House reviewing bill that would eliminate county’s right to set wage

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG
PCC EDITOR

LEE COUNTY - Representatives of a committee assembled to put together a proposal to bump the minimum wage in Lee County were a bit upset with an unexpected delay Tuesday.

At Tuesday’s regular meeting of the Lee County Board of Supervisors, committee members were on hand to ask why an ordinance to move the minimum wage in Lee County to $8.20 wasn’t being considered and several committee members pushed supervisors Ron Fedler and Rick Larkin on why there was a hold up on the ordinance. Mike Bennett, a spokesperson for the committee said he was upset that a vote didn’t come out of today’s meeting because an ordinance had been created, reviewed by County Attorney Ross Braden and submitted for approval.

Fedler and Larkin both said during the regular session that they were waiting on a report back from the committee and never got one. Larkin, as chairman of the supervisors, pulled the issue from the agenda because he felt he didn’t have enough information.

“In August last year, when we brought this in front of the supervisors we were told we would put together a committee consisting of two people from each supervisor’s district and we would put together a proposal and we would bring that proposal back and the board of supervisors would vote on it. I’d like to know why that has changed,” Bennett said.

"Is that because of the bill in front of the house? It’s been told to me that a supervisor said we’re not doing anything with that until the state acts on the bill and then we don’t have to worry about raising the minimum wage.”

House File 295 is currently working through committees in the Iowa House of Representatives and would remove city and county authority to adjust minimum wages in the state. An amendment was added to put it to a vote.

Kiwanis giving away $3,000 in scholarships

FORT MADISON - The Fort Madison Kiwanis Club is offering scholarships to High School seniors. Three scholarships in the amount of $1,000.00 each will be awarded to graduating seniors. One recipient will be from Fort Madison Senior High School, one will be from Holy Trinity High School and the third will be a member of the Fort Madison High School Key Club.

Scholarship applicants should have plans to pursue additional training at an accredited college or university or business, technical, trade or career school. The applicant’s scholastic achievement should reflect the student’s ability to succeed in additional training. Also, the student should be actively involved in school and/or community service and leadership activities. Key Club members who are interested in applying should talk to their club sponsor, Sarah Kohl. Applications are available at the Fort Madison High School and Holy Trinity High School guidance counselors offices or by contacting Sarah Clendinning at sarahcl@ gmail.com. Applications are due by May 1 and the winners will be notified in May.
Storm damage confined to east side of city

to help her clean up. “I didn’t even know who to call. I called Cassie (Gilbert) at Main Street and said I need buckets and wet vacs and can you call someone to help me,” she said. “She called around and Dave Poland from Two Rivers came over. Cassie was able to get a hold of a WetVac from Boulder’s Inn & Suites so Dave went and got that.”

“I was like who else can I call to help get people down here to help with the water. I think people should know how everybody down here is like a family and if you need something people are here. I don’t think people realize all this is down here,” she said.

Derr said she will be moving her merchandise to storefront to the west at 824 Avenue G so she can remain open while restorations are being done. However, she said the old fashioned ice cream and soda station are good to go.

Lee County Emergency Management Director Steve Cirinna said he hadn’t heard about the roof damage in Fort Madison, but said he was aware of some high winds and some tree damage.

Fort Madison street crews blocked off Avenue E from 5th Street to 6th Street when a large tree snapped off about 15 feet up and fell across the street from the south side onto the north easement and landed nearly between two vehicles. Street crews were out early Tuesday morning, cutting and removing the tree from the roadway.

An air conditioning unit was pulled from its mount atop the Fox Theatre and hung precariously on the roof by the hoses. A window was blown out at the old Lee County Bank building and the canopy/awning from Under the Sun was almost completely ripped from the building at the corner of 8th and Avenue G. All businesses are open today for business, although customers are asked to bear with the clean-up.

Emergency crews also responded to a semi-trailer that had been tipped on its side in the north-bound lane of Hwy 218 just north of Donnellson. The driver was trapped in the cab of the trailer but rescue crews were able to get him out uninjured.

The sun did come out

High winds late Monday night ripped the awning off the front of Under The Sun. The corner of Avenue G and 8th Street sustained some of the heaviest damage. A window was also blown out of the Lee County Bank building.

Roof damage

Ceiling frames stick over the back of 820 Avenue G in Fort Madison. The roof collapsed after the roofing membrane was flipped back by high winds. On the right side of the picture is where a good portion of the brick firewall between the two buildings also collapsed. The building houses Brenda Derr’s Dollhouse Dreams and water damage has forced her to move her merchandise a unit west to 824 Avenue G. However, the ice cream and soda station are still open.

Fedler, Larkin wanted discussion before voting on ordinance

Monday by Rep. Brian Meyer (D-Polk County) that would set the minimum wage at $8.75 July 1, then move it to $9.75 on Jan. 1, 2018, and $10.75 on Jan. 1, 2019. Meyer’s amendment also stipulates an annual percentage increase equal to the cost of living increase formula used in Social Security benefit tabulations. Meyer also added an amendment removing all superfluous language relating to consumer packaging that is part of the current bill in debate.

Larkin said it was his understanding that the committee would bring in people from the community to speak on the issue and there would be good discussion on it, but all he saw was an ordinance on the agenda so he pulled it back. Larkin said it was his expectation that the committee did their jobs in recommending the ordinance.

“Did the committee members recommend the ordinance? Then why isn’t it on the agenda,” Follo said. “The ordinance is a recommendation. It has to be read three times. Once it’s out there you’ll have your discussion.”

Supervisor Don Humold, who sat on the committee with Supervisor Matt Pflog said the blame could be laid at his feet. “I pretty much took the bull by the horns and should have contacted you guys. It’s kind of my fault I got ahead of the horse here a little bit and I should have gotten information to you so you can put the blame right here,” he said.

But Pflog said bringing the ordinance to the board doesn’t create that big of a problem. “If it’s brought to the board you vote either up or down. So you’re saying you don’t have any idea what happened in those committee meetings?”

After a lengthy discussion in the workshop following the regular session, the board decided to put the ordinance on the agenda for next week. Procedures would typically require three readings before passage, but boards can waive the additional readings by a majority vote.

“We know that $8.20 is not going to make somebody enough money to live on, but we have to recognize people have not gotten a raise in a long time,” said Kathy Gabel, a committee member from Keokuk.

“As a group we need to set a precedent in Lee County that we appreciate our workers and if we can raise the bar even in pensions then we are setting a standard for people to expect a higher standard of living in our community and we want that for the people of Lee County,” said Meyer.

In another action, the board approved the 2017-2018 budget.

Chair Rick Larkin said he was proud of the way the county staff worked together to get the budget passed even though the county is showing a $1.5 million deficit. The deficit will reduce the county’s fund balance to just over $10 million at the end of the fiscal year. Pflog also said that the county is, and always has been, conducting itself in a fiscally sound and with the Health department building referendum approaching May 2, he hopes voters see that conduct.

• the board approved a Class C Beer Permit for Tri-State Outdoor Products.

• the board approved a liquor license for Archies 2 in Wever.

• the board approved a contract for security services provided by Lee County Sheriff’s Department for the Iowa Fertilizer Company. The contract would reimburse the county for deputies’ time on the facility outside of normal call duties, according to County Attorney Ross Braden.

This work would be on a voluntary basis for the deputies, according to the discussion.

• the board approved a resolution to set a public hearing to enter into an installment agreement with WatchGuard Video for body and dashboard cameras for the sheriff’s department.

GRRWA ramping up education efforts with new mascots

BY CHUCK VANDEMBERG PCC EDITOR

FORT MADISON - A superhero may be coming to a class near you.

The Great River Regional Waste Authority is currently working on putting together three mascots for its Environmental Management System’s educational programming.

Wade Hamm, director of the authority, said one of the state’s objectives for recycling and waste management programs is an educational focus aimed at teaching the state’s youth about the benefits of recycling.

“It’s just one of six items that they audit us on. Our objective is to have more environmental classes,” Hamm said. “We’re making a series of Power Point presentations depending upon the age of the youth we’re talking to. We had some employees who said we should get a mascot for recycling, so that’s what we’re looking at. We want to increase the number of those presentations we’re doing and really get the word out there about environmental management.”

Hamm said GRRWA doesn’t have the mascots yet but they are looking online for a super hero, Rocky out of Paw Patrol who drives a recycling truck, and they are trying to find a third one.

“We’ve got an employee who’s excited about being our mascot and helping educate area kids on our programming. One of the focuses we want to hit hard is the younger kids. I give presentations to local service groups, Lions clubs, etc. and they do the education programs.

In another stroke of good news for GRRWA is that offender labor that is part of the authority’s workforce will remain intact through the end of June. Hamm said GRRWA’s contract is with Iowa Prison Industries, and he was informed that IPI will be honoring their contract with GRRWA and will be sending offenders from the Mt. Pleasant facility.

Although that labor will be cut by about an hour per day due to increased travel and offenders having to be back in Mt. Pleasant by 3 p.m. they have to leave the facility a bit earlier than usual.

“When they decided to close the John Bennett Unit they had to move those inmates throughout the state. IPI contacted me and said they would get me a crew from Mt. Pleasant and carry out the contract we have,” Hamm said.

“That’s kind of a bad deal for the city, but the state had to do what it had to do. I felt very fortunate that IPI stepped up and honored the contract.”

He said he didn’t know if there would be a way to work out logistics to get some labor for the city to use in the parks system. The city is left with a labor shortfall where offender labor was used at .50/hour and now is faced with looking outside city payroll to get parks and cemeteries maintained.
