Bagpipes, band wrap up park series

The Nauvoo Bagpipe Band joined the Fort Madison City Band to wrap up the Summer City Band concerts in Fort Madison’s Central Park Sunday night. The band marched in from the northeast corner and played several tunes before giving way to the City Band.

Summer reading and a nasty cold

I made it all through winter and spring without my token cold, and was feeling pretty confident, like maybe, along with old age comes an immunity to the gift that keeps on giving. Then this insufferable heat hit. I noticed a burning in the back of my throat that didn’t amount to much. “It’ll be gone tomorrow,” I told myself.

Wham! It was like I was hit by a Mack Truck.

Summer colds are the worst. They hang on and won’t go away, like a little kid brother on your first date. In the winter, the low outside temps, I think, help keep the cold, like the first hard frost kills off diseased rabbits. But in summer, the heat brews you in your own stew. Yuck.

Alas, if there’s any good news about a summer cold (and there is), it’s that it gives you a good excuse to pull the shades in an air-conditioned house, sit back in the recliner with a cup of mint tea, and open a good book. I’m just going to throw out a gob of books here, and you can pick and choose as you like.

Frank Conroy There seems to be a renewed interest in Frank Conroy, not Pat Conroy, Frank Conroy. Frank Conroy is the author/musician who became the director of the writers workshop at the University of Iowa. He is now deceased, but his legacy as an author/musician and teacher lives on. Frank Conroy reminds me a lot of Garrison Keillor, both story-telling and looks wise. Some of his newer writing has been published, which is a treat, and his older, established works, if you haven’t read them already, are well worth re-reading—the ultimate compliment for any author. His newer stuff: “Time & Tides” and “Dogs Bark, but the Caravan Rolls On” (catchy title) are essays and short stories on topics such as music, writing and authors, like F. Scott Fitzgerald. The older stuff: “Body & Soul” and “Stop-Time” are autobiographical in nature but describe two different boys growing up in dysfunctional, semi-caring, musical, worlds. Don’t try to make sense of the difference between you and the other, but hang on and you will understand the world of the boys a little better.

secure manner. CSN is regularly audited and has been certified as fully HIPAA compliant. The system also incorporates the additional Iowa Code security regulations, and users are required to follow strict security guidelines to keep consumer information safe and secure," said Shane Walter, Iowa County Community Services Association President and Sioux County Community Services Director. A lot of accurate data has come from the system because a substantial number of entities using the system and regions and counties are standardizing business processes. The integrity and amount of data allows the legislature to make informed decisions regarding the services provided across the state. The mental health disability services system recently shifted from a county to a region-based system. CSN helped to allow counties to undertake this transition more easily.

Bill Peterson, ISAC Executive Director stated, “CSN 3.0 will continue to help government employees do their job efficiently and accurately while saving costs for the tax paying citizens of Iowa.”

CSN is governed by the Iowa Counties Technology Services (ICTS) Board of Directors as well as the ICTS Advisory Committee and Operations Subcommittee. These bodies are made up of both users and other governmental officials and employees.

that I didn’t know the meaning of. I looked it up in my “American Heritage Dictionary” and, lo-and-behold, if it didn’t list the exact passage from “Body & Soul” as an example for usage of the word. I called the writers workshop and I’ll be damned if Frank Conroy didn’t answer the phone. I was flabbergasted. I told Frank Conroy about finding his passage from “Body & Soul” in the “American Heritage Dictionary” and he was humble and friendly, with a nice grandfatherly voice. He sent me an application for the writer’s workshop, but I never filled it out. Something like several thousand writers apply for admission, with only a few accepted. Was I a wuss? Yep.

If Frank Conroy doesn’t keep you from heat stroke, try Elizabeth Strout’s new book, “Anything is Possible,” or Fredrik Backman’s (author of “A Man Called Ove”) new book, “Bear Town.” For the man’s man, Richard Russo’s “Trajectory” will cure a cold. Anything by David Guterson will fit in great with fever hallucinations, and for pure motivation, something we all need during the doldrums of summer, the old stand-by, “Eat, Pray, Love” by Elizabeth Gilbert may open clogged air passages.

I’ve been rereading “Body & Soul,” looking for that word that the “American Heritage Dictionary” uses to quote Frank Conroy. To no avail. But it sure helps alleviate the misery of a summer cold, sorta like those Vicks-treated nose tissues. Ah-ah, choo!
