FORT MADISON - Firefighters were called to the scene of a house fire just after 9 p.m. Friday night in the 1900 block of Avenue F. According to witnesses at the scene, flames were jumping from the northeast corner of the structure at about 9 p.m. at a home at 1905 Avenue F. Fort Madison police and a Lee County Sheriff’s deputy were already on the scene. Fort Madison firefighters were on the scene “just a few minutes” after the witnesses saw the flames and had the fire quickly under control.

Law enforcement said the building was occupied at the time but everyone escaped unharmed and one person was treated for minor smoke inhalation by Lee County EMS personnel. The northeast corner of the building sustained heavy fire damage and the southwest side of a one-car garage on the property also had heat damage. No other information was immediately available, Lee County EMS, Fort Madison Police, Lee County Sheriff’s Department and Alliant Energy were at the scene.

Fort Madison firefighters pull back melted siding from a home that caught fire at about 9 p.m. Friday night at 1905 Avenue F. At left, a team cuts a hole in the roof of the residence.

District focuses on collaboration, creativity as new year approaches

FORT MADISON - As the target for what determines a successful graduate keeps changing, Fort Madison school officials continue to look at the district’s role in preparing those students for life after high school.

Fort Madison Community School District Superintendent Erin Slater addressed the district staff Friday morning as part of the 2017-18 school year kick off. The school year officially starts on Thursday, but freshmen report on Wednesday morning for a half day before a 6 p.m. orientation the same day, according to the district’s website.

Slater challenged the staff to make sure they’re focused on goals of the district to prepare each student from the district’s first encounter to graduation, to instill life and learning skills to be able to compete in a global economy.

She said a survey of the top 300 employers in the country pointed to complex problem solving skills as the number one key employment trait those employers were looking for.

“Higher order thinking skills are what we need to be working on for our kids,” Slater said. “That higher level thinking is what they need to be able to have on their way out. Thinking collaboratively and creatively.

“Our kids need content knowledge – that is a non-negotiable,” Slater said. “But they need more than that and we need to make it relevant for them so they can do these things that companies are asking of them. This is the high stakes arena we’re sending our kids into.”

FMCH dedicates new courtyard

FORT MADISON - The Fort Madison Community Hospital Foundation held a dedication celebration for the newly renovated courtyard at Fort Madison Community Hospital (FMCH). The courtyard renovation was funded by the generous donations of the Dick Canella Family memorial and the FMCH Employee Campaign held in May of 2017.

This beautifully renovated space uses a pergola with outdoor table and chairs, a water feature, blooming plants and lawn swings to invite patients, families and employees to take reprieve there. The courtyard is conveniently located by the Main Lobby and the inpatient units. The courtyard project was completed by Chuck Osmanski, President Elect of the FMCH Foundation rounded out the celebration with closing remarks. Chuck Osmanski, President Elect of the FMCH Foundation rounded out the celebration with closing remarks. The dedication celebration was attended by Cathy (Canella) and Brent Packard; the FMCH Board of Directors; the FMCH Foundation Board of Directors; FMCH employees and Greg Stueker. Jeremy Alexander, Vice-President of Finance and acting CEO opened the celebration with a reminder that it is the tomorrow’s we focus on in our everyday work at FMCH and the courtyard offers us a space to reflect upon our tomorrows. Pastor Cheryl Simpson followed with an invocation.

JoAnn Lampe, President of the FMCH Foundation Board of Directors reminded the attendees of all the great things Dick Canella did, not only for Fort Madison Community Hospital, but the community as a whole and how grateful we are for the legacy he left including the beautiful courtyard. Chuck Osmanski, President Elect of the FMCH Foundation rounded out the celebration with closing remarks. The FMCH Foundation is focused on its mission to support the work of Fort Madison Community Hospital and to ensure the continuation of quality health care in our community. New faces bring diversity to district

She challenged the district staff to look at the school from the perspective of a child in their life. She had staff write down one sentence on a card summarizing what they wanted the district to provide for that child, and then share that sentence with a staff member near them.

She then challenged them to keep that card with them at all times and think about what that statement means to them. “We’re very excited for the school year,” Slater said after the meeting. Teachers have been working hard all summer talking about standards and how to engage students.

More than 25 new faces are part of the district in either full or part-time status. Slater said that may be a few more than years past, but Teacher Leadership and Compensation program grants have created a few more openings.

“We have some instructional coaches that were grant-funded and that has opened up a few more teaching slots as we have moved a few teachers into the instructional coaches positions,” Slater met with new staff in the district on Thursday and was impressed with who the district has brought into the process.

“They are thrilled to be here and I was surprised at the diversity. Some are brand new and some are second career,” she said. “They bring a lot of work experience and that’s a nice addition to our district.”

Mary Hellige, head of the Fort Madison Education Association, told staff that the district is unique and staff should take pride and responsibility in the work being done.

“Our district isn’t the only one making a difference in our students lives,” Hellige said. “Our communities do as well. We are the community that has a test kitchen to help our students test scores. We are a community that had 1517 votes for a new elementary building and are continuing to fight for what’s best for our students,” Hellige said.

Middle School Principal Todd Dirth said he’s excited about the new school year, specifically a new P.A.C.K. program that focuses on life skills of the 4th through 8th grade students. The program includes digital citizenship, SET classes and other modules.

He said the program was created with input from the students and will be part of the daily schedule of the students. “This is the first year of the program and we had a group of students help us put this together with input from the staff,” Dirth said after the meeting.

“It’s been in the works for two years and it stands for Pride, Acknowledgement, Courage and Kindness and it focuses on the other side of student development...away from the curriculum.”

Tracy King, the principal at Lincoln Elementary said she’s looking forward to the new year and more collaboration that’s being scheduled.

“We’re going to be collaborating more and continuing the work we started last year as afar as completing an entire data cycle in our PDs and Lincoln and Richardson will have PDs together on early outs.”
