Facebook changes may impact news coverage

FORT MADISON - Last week, Facebook announced it was rolling out changes that would profoundly alter the way news appears in users’ News Feeds, with the priority being placed on users’ family and friends, in an effort to refocus the platform to fulfilling its original purpose of “bringing people together and building relationships.”

The decision was reportedly spurred by recent research indicating the negative effects the platform had on the mood of users. Co-founder Mark Zuckerberg’s own Facebook post announcing the change and the reasoning behind it, he states “…research shows that when we use social media to connect with people we care about, it can be good for our well-being. We can feel more connected and less lonely, and that correlates with long term measures of happiness and health. On the other hand, passively reading articles or watching videos -- even if they’re entertaining or informative -- is not as good. “ Read Zuckerberg’s full post here.

The new Facebook phase-in will place priority on the content that spurs the most meaningful conversation and debate, meaning these posts will show higher in users’ News Feeds. The new Facebook algorithm will predict what content users are most likely to be interested in based on these interactions, and will display this content higher in their News Feed, as well as prioritizing posts from family and friends.

Public content – that is, content from businesses and publishers – will continue to be displayed in timelines, but in a limited fashion and not in a prominent position. For users that currently enjoy scrolling their News Feed for news, funny cat videos and other memes, or social media formats, expect this move to push users to Twitter and other more valuable to the user. Many in the online universe have come to rest in an embankment on the west side of Hwy. 16 just short of the intersection. Lee County Ambulance, Wever Fire & Rescue, Denmark Fire & Rescue and the Lee County Sheriff’s department assisted at the scene.

Shottenkirk closes east side sales lot

Dealership moves inventory, but plans to repurpose lot

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG
PCC EDITOR

FORT MADISON - An empty car lot now sits on the east end of town, as Shottenkirk moved its used car inventory to its full service dealership on the city’s west end.

Mike Anderson, general manager of the CarSmart location and the Shottenkirk dealership in Mt. Pleasant, said the decision was made just last week to consolidate the lots.

“I just took that store over last Tuesday, and with the assistance of Greg Shottenkirk and the ownership, we decided with the Internet presence, and so much being done on the Internet now, it would be much easier to manage one site instead of two across the city,” Anderson said Monday. The time management just wasn’t the best and we felt it was the best interest of clientele to put it one location.”

He said the location won’t be sold and Shottenkirk will probably use the building in some capacity in the near future, but wouldn’t put a timeline on any decision.

“We’ve had a good positive response from the community,” he said. “It’s better to have, instead of 25 cars there, 250-300 cars out there, which gives our customers a better choice. Sometimes people go in there and don’t like what they have, instead of 25 cars there, 250-300 cars out there, which gives our customers a better choice. Sometimes people go in there and don’t like what they have, instead of 25 cars there, 250-300 cars out there, which gives our customers a better choice.”

He said the building is a former gas station and it’s uses are limited but ownership isn’t looking to sell the property. He said options for future use could be a parts depot or a service station, but didn’t limit to those options.

Sun dogs

Officials say Shottenkirk will be back

"Consider what the building was before, there are only certain things you can and can’t put in there," Anderson said.

"We want positive stuff to be out there for Shottenkirk and I’m sure Greg (Shottenkirk) will be making an announcement on that in the near future."

Cassie Gilbert, director of Fort Madison Main Street said the business and staff will be missed.

"It is always disappointing to see a business close in the downtown district and the CarSmart staff will be missed by our downtown merchants," Gilbert said. "As always, Main Street is continuously working to bring new business into the downtown area and we look forward to seeing how the building will be repurposed by Shottenkirk.

Shottenkirk has closed its CarSmart location in the Fort Madison Main Street district effective Wednesday. All the inventory in the lot has been moved back to the dealership’s main lot on the west side of town.
