Morawitz to seek state house seat

First-term councilman throws hat in the ring for Kearns’ seat

FORT MADISON - A current sitting Fort Madison city councilman announced Monday night that he was seeking election to the Iowa House of Representatives 83rd district. Fort Madison city councilman and electrician, Bob Morawitz, unofficially announced his intentions to run for the Iowa House of Representatives seat currently being held by retiring Representative Jerry Kearns at Monday’s Democratic caucus, but made the announcement official Tuesday afternoon. The district includes 9 townships in southern and eastern Lee county that include the cities of Fort Madison, Keokuk, Montrose, and Weyer.

“I’m running for the Iowa House because our state is headed in the wrong direction. Wages are stagnant and hardworking Iowans are struggling to get by. Politicians are ignoring our broken health care system, causing costs to skyrocket and our state budget has been mismanaged causing cuts to education, Medicaid and critical services,” Morawitz said.

Lee County chair won’t seek re-election

Hunold joins Kearns, Heaton in stepping down from posts

MONTROSE - Lee County Supervisor Don Hunold announced today that he will not be seeking re-election to the Board of Supervisors in this year’s election. Hunold, who spent 12 years on the Central Lee Community School District Board of Directors and is finishing his fourth year as a supervisor, said after Tuesday’s meeting he will only serve one term on the board.

“This is my last year, Hunold said. “I’m going to give it up. I’ve had a few health issues, but now I’m cancer free and there’s some things I want to do and I want to get them done before something else happens, so I’m gone.”

County wants to pursue new jail meal plan

Supervisors may take out a loan to pay for kitchen upgrade

MONTROSE - A plan to shift Lee County Jail inmate meal vendors from the Iowa Prison Industries to a Des Moines vendor took another step Tuesday. After Tuesday’s Lee County Board of Supervisors meeting, chairman Don Hunold briefed the board on the progress of the project at a workshop. The sheriff’s department currently gets their meals from the IPI, a subsidiary of the Iowa Department of Corrections at Iowa State Penitentiary, at $3.50 per meal for two meals a day which costs taxpayers $229,950 annually, not including breakfast. Inmates are getting toaster pastries for breakfast at a projected cost of about $20,000 per year.

Under a new plan being proposed by Consolidated Correctional Foodservice, a subsidiary of Consolidated Management Co. of Des Moines, meal prices could drop to as low as $1.65 per meal but the county would need to upgrade the jail’s kitchen at a projected cost of $65,000 to $80,000. Consolidated has offered to handle the renovations in the kitchen, but would require a 5-year contract with meals set at $2.03 to offset those costs.

Canadian gaggle

A gaggle of geese found an stretch of open water on the Mississippi River Tuesday evening. The recent cold snap accompanied by about four inches of snow crusted the river over. Snow is expected in light amounts each day for the rest of the week.

so many Iowans count on, said Morawitz. “What is of special concern to me is funding for our judicial system. Our courts and penal system are already understaffed and the legislature is looking at cutting them even more. I have friends and relatives working in our prison, underfunding and understaffing is putting them and our community at risk.”

Morawitz, 61, was just elected to the Fort Madison City Council in November and was sworn in last month. He had previously been a member of the city’s Electrical Board of Examiners and chairman of the Historic Preservation Commission.

Morawitz said he’s running to continue the work of Kearns.

“It’s the fact that I wasn’t expecting Jerry to retire so early,” Morawitz said. “It was a surprise to me. I’ve known Jerry for years and we think a lot a like. I thought they (the voters) would see me as somebody that could continue Jerry’s good work.”

In his release Tuesday, Morawitz outlined some of the issues facing the district and the state.

“We need good jobs in southeast Iowa and that takes an educated workforce. We cannot afford to cut more money from our local school systems, community colleges, and universities and expect to be able to provide our state with the workers that modern businesses require,” Morawitz said.

Morawitz was born in Burlington, Iowa and graduated from Burlington High School. After five years of active duty in the U.S. Navy, he returned to Burlington to work and earn his AA degree from Southeastern Community College. Thirty-one years ago he moved to Fort Madison and started his electrical apprenticeship with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW). Morawitz is currently Recording Secretary, Political Registrar, and Pension Committee trustee for IBEW Local 13.

Morawitz and his wife, Beverly Gobble, have been married for 23 years. They have five sons, 13 grandchildren, and nine great-grandchildren.

At Monday’s Democratic caucus, Morawitz told the crowd of about 40 that he was disappointed in what happened to Chapter 20 and public employees rights to collective bargaining.

“I don’t like where we’re going in this state and I don’t like what happened with Chapter 20. We need to get back to where we were on that,” he said. “I want to get back to Iowans taking care of Iowans and not corporations.”

Morawitz is currently Recording Secretary, Political Registrar, and Pension Committee trustee for IBEW Local 13.

Hunold said he’s happy with the progress of the county

na to call it quits.”

Hunold, a Democrat, said he’s happy in how the county has progressed despite tightening budgets.”

“That’s an ongoing battle with the state and that’s fine, we all know that,” he said. “I just wanted to let the public know so if someone is interested in running they can get their name out there.”

Hunold was elected in 2014 with 1,620 votes. His term will expire at the year’s end. His announcement comes on the heels of State Rep. Jerry Knaebs’ (D-Keokuk) announcement 10 days ago that he will not be seeking re-election this year. State Rep. Dave Heaton (R-Mt. Pleasant) announced Monday that he, too, will be stepping down this year.

Residents interested in running for office can currently petition and gather signatures to have their names on the ballot, but candidates for county office can’t turn in that paperwork until March 5 at the Lee County Auditor’s office. The final day for filing paperwork is March 28, according to Nikki Sugars, the Lee County deputy auditor and elections administrator.

Candidates for state office submit their paperwork to the Iowa Secretary of State’s office and can do so beginning Feb. 26. They also have until March 28 to turn in paperwork. Residents can also request absentee ballots 120 days prior to the June 7 Primary Election. The ballots will be sent out 29 days prior to the election.

This year’s general election is on Nov. 8.

Over 30 student projects compete for cash, awards

This year’s Science Fair is sponsored by Axalta Coating Systems and the Elliott Test Kitchen (ETK). Since the beginning of the school year, the Elliott Test Kitchen has opened its doors to students to work on their science fair projects. For the past several Thursdays, Science Fair students were able to come to the ETK and get necessary guidance from their teachers for their projects and also were treated to a delicious meal for their effort. Axalta is a proud supporter of STEM education for our area’s youth and has come forward to make the Science Fair a successful annual event by helping with the cost and also providing support to the Elliott Test Kitchen in order to accommodate 25 to 30 students on Thursdays throughout the school year. According to Erin Thurman, Human Resource Advisor and honorary guest at the award ceremony, “Axalta is very proud to support STEM educational programs such as the Science Fair.”

The 2018 FMMS Science Fair will culminate with an awards ceremony, which will be held at 5 pm on February 12th. Parents, students, and staff members are invited to view the projects on display and recognize the students’ accomplishments and hard work.

First, second and third place students will be awarded Axalta Excellence in Science trophies and cash prizes of $75, $50 and $25 accordingly. All the participants will receive participation medals for their efforts and treated to a pizza party during the event compliments of Axalta Coating Systems. Winning students will have the opportunity to compete at the next level in March against other middle school students in various area schools.

Hunold showed how it might be cheaper to take out a loan and use the savings on the meals to pay the loan off and save the county money on that cost.

Hunold handed out a scenario where the county would borrow the money for the kitchen renovation at an estimated 5% interest. Borrowing the money allows the county to keep the meals at $1.65 per day, which is a .38/pers meal savings. With an average inmate population of 90, that number would equate to $102.60 per day annualized at $37,499 per year. With interest the county would be repaying approximately $81,000, he showed the loan would be paid off in 2.16 years. With the 5-year contract, the additional cost per meal would amount to $187,495 over the term of the contract, so the county would save $106,495 over the five-year period.

Supervisor Gary Folluo said if the county was going to take out a loan of that type held to like some other projects rolled into the loan, but didn’t elaborate prior to the end of the workshop.

Lee County Sheriff Stacy Weber, said Jail Administrator John Canida has been doing diligence on the plan and has said Iowa Prison Industries hasn’t been able to come down to that price.

“Prison Industries has reached out to us, but quite frankly I told them that if they couldn’t get to $1.65 I wasn’t interested. They’re trying to get into this business, too. There’s a profit in it so they wouldn’t be doing it.”

Supervisor Matt Plag said he had a concern that Consolidated would be trying to buy into the business and then move to a higher per meal price. Plag recommended trying to secure a long-term contract if Consolidated was open to something like that.

Wever said he has had conversations with other jails in Iowa that use Consolidated and there have been no problems. Weber did say that if the inmate population dropped significantly to like 20 inmates, the rate may increase, but he said other jails that have had that issue have never had rates higher than $1.85 per meal.

“Contacted a sheriff’s department that’s been using them for 10 years and that’s not been the case,” he said.

Weber also said the Juvenile Detention Center, which is located next to the jail, is on board with the switch, too, and will work in conjunction with the jail.

“Whoever we go with, they’re going to piggy back right along with us,” Weber said.

Weber also said the Juvenile Detention Center, which is located next to the jail, is on board with the switch, too, and will work in conjunction with the jail.

Supervisor Ron Fedler said adding the juvenile center could help keep the meal numbers up.

Hunold told Weber to keep moving forward on the project. Weber said during the past months’ budgeting process he cut the department’s meal budget to $150,000 reflecting the change.

“It’s up to you but this is a tremendous way to start some savings. I’m with you guys. I don’t want to rush it. Let’s do what’s best for the taxpayer. But the point of this is saving money.”
