RiverFest committee and Vinnie’s Longbranch are incorporating a Battle of the Charities to coincide with the event. The group is also looking for a sponsor for the event and the sponsorship fee will go to the charity that raises the most money.

The event is set for May 27th, the Sunday of Memorial Day weekend. Right now plans for the event would include five judges determining which band will perform on the main stage. A second-place finisher may be invited to play on the entertainment stage. The event is free to the public, but there is an opportunity for attendees to donate to one of three charities upon entrance to the event. The charities would get the money and the charity that makes the most money that day would get the sponsorship fees as well.

As part of Sunday’s list of events, the Veterans’ Honor Flight program will once again be the recipients of an American Legion breakfast on Sunday morning.

For the first time ever, Dragon Boat racing will be part of Riverfest and proceeds from that event will benefit a veterans’ service dog program, called Puppy Jakes out of Urbandale. Authentic boats from the American Dragon Boat Association will be on hand for teams of 20 to race down the Mississippi River. Nick Bauswell is chairing that event. Bauswell has been drag boat racing for more than a decade and has already had interest from groups as far away as Cedar Rapids.

The boats hold 18 paddlers, a drummer, and a flag catcher. A sternsman is provided by the ADBA. Entry fee is $500 prior to May 1st and $600 after May 1st. Sponsorships are available that include entry fees. Bauswell said forming teams are a great way to develop teamwork or organizational team building. This year’s event promises national rock talent headlining the main stage, the carnival returns, and food and commercial vendors will also be on site for visitors to the festival.

The committee is holding a blowout announcement party on March 10 beginning at 6 p.m. at Kinnick South in Fort Madison. Those in attendance will also be eligible to get raffle tickets for a VIP weekend package that will be drawn at the announcement party.

The committee has already released this year’s beer tent bands with 1970s tribute band Jive Radio on that will be drawn at the announcement party.

had set a goal for myself. I was on my way to work. Right in front of the fire department, I kid you not, was a rollover accident with the car lying on its roof right in the middle of the street. I pulled over to help. There was a man walking around confused, saying, “I can’t believe it. I’m driving along and all of a sudden, I’m upside down.” It was winter and, evidently what had happened was, he had hit a mound of snow and ice that was piled up in the middle of the street. When the city had plowed its streets, they had left piles of snow and ice in the middle of the streets and hadn’t removed them yet. (You all know what this is like.) The snow and ice became dirty, the same color as the pavement, making the piles hard to see in the early morning light. The driver of the vehicle had hit one of these piles and flipped his car. “Can’t you guys plow your streets?” he was asking the police, shaking his head in bewilderment.

Day Three: I went to the optician’s to have his eyes checked. It was the middle of winter and the streets were icy. There was an elderly lady flat on her back on the sidewalk with a knee injury. Tim Olson, a local mor-
The Crusaders ended the season 11-3. Senior Brett Schneider put up 25 points utilizing her speed and quickness, six of the baskets coming off steals. Junior Emily Boeding had nine boards to lead HTC and chipped in with six minutes left to go in the half to digging ourselves into a 2nd quarter hole we were unlikely to overcome. However HTC did outscore the Braves the rest of the way.

Hellige said he called the full time out to give his players some rest, despite a hybrid man zone press and also to handle a stretch and stall employed by the IMS to try and run the clock out on HTC.

“They run a ton of variations on their press. We were running time outs to give the kids some rest and to readjust what we were doing with their press. We had five or six variations based on what they were doing as well,” Hellige said.

Down just five at 49-44 and coming out of the time out, the two teams both failed to score on their next possession, but sophomore Quentin Schneider, who led HTC with 18 points on the night, hit inside to cut the lead to 49-46. IMS missed again on the next trip down and on a fast break coming back after slipping the press, Schneider was whistled for a charge nullifying a bucket.

IMS coughed it up in the lane in their next possession and Thornton forced the issue at the other end. The Crusaders were on a break and fed Thornton up front who was fouled for a charge nullifying a bucket. The Crusaders were on a break and fed Thornton up front who was fouled for a charge nullifying a bucket.

The game was nip and tuck out of the gate, but IMS held a slim lead all the way through the first quarter with leads as big as five. Then HTC went on a 7-2 run highlighted by Fehseke’s second 3-ball of the quarter to help the Crusaders tie it at 14.

Caleb Gingerich hit a 3-ball of his own just before the end of the quarter to give IMS a 17-14 lead going into the second quarter.

Holy Trinity would score the first half of Thursday’s game against Iowa Mennonite Schools. The Crusaders’ season ended with a 56-49 defeat at IMS in Kalona.

The Crusaders applied a little pressure of their own, but freshman Eli Ours got free in the middle of the floor and raced to the basket converting the layup and getting fouled by HTCS’ Reed Fehseke. Fehseke picked up his third foul in the 2nd quarter and played the rest of the game until that one point with one foul.

Ours converted the free throw and IMS was up by five. The Crusaders turned it over under the basket on the next trip and had to foul to stop. Senior Cole Ours calmly drilled both free throws and, aside from a two more free throws from Thornton, IMS had sewn it up.

Holy Trinity would only convert 2-of-8 in the second period and, with Fehseke picking up his third foul in the first period, things looked a bit bleak for the visitors. But tough defensive stands and Schneider driving the baseline and drawing contact, the Crusaders made it to the free throw line ten times, converting seven, including two by Schneider at the end of the half, to give HTC a one point lead going into the locker room.

IMS converted just four buckets and no free throws in the second period and went just 4-of-16 from the field.

Reggie Borntrager hit to start the 3rd period but Fehseke answered with a long three pointer to knot the game at 28.

The Crusaders got two more free throws from Schneider at 3:56 left, but then IMS went on a 9-1 run that ended with a Schneider bucket, but HTC was already down nine by then and Holy Trinity wouldn’t get any closer until the run at 3:31 in the 4th.

Hellige said the performance was what the team envisioned at the beginning of the season.

“This is kind of the team (assistant) Jay (Baldwin) and I envisioned this summer,” he said. “We scouted them and knew what we had and we knew if we played strong and we played smart we would be there at the end of the game,” he said.

Seniors Thornton and Ryan Rees drew special praise from Hellige.

“Collin has been a mainstay in this program since fifth grade and Ryan was by far our best practice player and he only played for one year for us. But he helped everyone be a better player,” Hellige said.

“The future is bright, the things that people need to keep in perspective is that usually sophomores are going up against seniors and juniors during practice and they improve during practice. But these kids stepped on the court as sophomores and have learned in front of the watchful eyes of family and friends and it’s been great watching them getting better and better.”

Fehseke finished with 13 points on the night followed by Thornton with nine, Matt Hellige had six, Blake Crabtree had two, and Brant Holtkamp chipped in with one to round out the scoring for HTC.

Eli and Cole Ours led IMS with 14 and 13 points, respectively. They host Highland at Mt. Pleasant Tuesday night in the regional finals.
