City seeing soft hotel/motel tax revenues

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG
PCC EDITOR

FORT MADISON - Hotel and motel revenues in the city have taken a dip in the past year, but city officials are trying to react early to head off any budget crunches for organizations counting on those funds to bring people into Fort Madison.

According to Fort Madison City Manager David Varley, the city is down about 19% for the first three quarters of the fiscal year, which ends June 30.

"If things continue the way they are, it would be about a $30,000 to $40,000 maximum hit this year compared to last year," Varley said.

The hotel/motel tax funds are a 9% fee paid by visitors who stay in the city's hotels and motels. A portion of the funds is then allocated by the tourism board annually to the Fort Madison Area Artists Association and North Lee County Historical Society with final approval coming from the City Council. The FMAAA gets a 7.5% share of the funds currently capped at $14,000, while NLCHS is at 6% capped at $12,000.

Another portion of those revenues are used to fund Fort Madison Tourism Director Jean Peiton's $35,000 budget. Peiton currently works in a part-time capacity marketing the city throughout the region. The rest of the funds are controlled by the tourism board and given on an as-qualified basis to independent groups in the city putting on events that bring people into town, such as the rejuvenated RiverFest, past fishing tournaments, and other hyper-local tourism events.

Varley said it was hard to come up with a reason why the revenues are slipping because he doesn't receive data from the city's hotels, however he did point to the end of construction of the Iowa Fertilizer Plant, which buoyed hotel/motel revenues significantly during the construction years. He said this year city staff had preliminarily budgeted $220,000 for those revenues. But when the final budget was adopted that figure was reduced to $213,000.

"It's stupid to keep doing more of the same, and things are slipping significantly during construction years. The city is seeing a reduced amount of revenue coming in from their hotel/motel tax from city hotels, like Boulders Inn & Suites above, and is taking steps to soften the impact.

The city's hotels and motels bring in an estimated $1.2 million mark in private and grant investments, things like that. But from January 2017 to December 2017, we added another million," she said.

She said that doesn't include work being done by Barker Financial of Iowa City on the former Cattermole Library or the old Lee County Bank building. Gilbert said she doesn't include those investments until the projects are completed.

She said the next milestone is $5 million and when those projects are completed, the investments will go toward

FM Main Street brings home honors from state convention

FORT MADISON - The Fort Madison Main Street program was honored by the state on Friday after surpassing $3 million in local investments since the program was readmitted to the state's Main Street program in 2009.

But more than $1 million of that investment happened in the last calendar year, movement that Fort Madison Main Street Director Cassie Gilbert said is very indicative of the progress happening downtown.

"Main Street Iowa has specific milestones they like you to hit and it took us from 2009 to 2017 to hit the $2 million mark in private and grant investments, things like that. But from January 2017 to December 2017, we added another million," she said.

Gilbert said she doesn't include work being done by Barker Financial of Iowa City on the former Cattermole Library or the old Lee County Bank building. Gilbert said she doesn't include those investments until the projects are completed.

She said the next milestone is $5 million and when those projects are completed, the investments will go toward

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG
PCC EDITOR

FORT MADISON - The FMHS boys tennis team fell 3-6 to Fairfield on Tuesday night with only Jason and Vasin Thurman winning in singles matches, while the duo of Sam Avery and Austin Krueger were able to slip away with a doubles win at No. 1.

Avery and Krueger both dropped their No. 1 and 2 singles matches against Fairfield’s Logan Williams and Dante Cingire. Avery fought back from a first set 2-6 loss to take the second set 6-4, before falling 10-6 in the tiebreaker.

Krueger never got going against Cingire losing 6-4, 6-3. At No. 3 singles Jason Thurman took a two set 6-4, 7-5 win from Jarod Willmon, but A.J. Greiner took FMHS’s Blake Feuerhammer 6-1, 6-0.

Vasin Thuman got the Hounds back on the board with a 6-1, 6-3 win over Will Sheppard at No. 5 singles, before Noel Peterson stopped the Hounds’ Gage Hind 4-6, 6-1 (10-5).

After the Hounds got the win at No. 1 doubles, the Thurman brothers fell 6-7 (6-8) 6-1 (10-5) in a hard fought match. Feuerhammer and Hind fell in straight 6-4, 6-4 sets to round out the doubles action.

On Tuesday, the Crusaders were tied with visiting Central Lee at the halfway mark, but couldn’t get anything else in the net as the Hawks ran away in the second half.

Alfred scored Holy Trinity’s only goal in Tuesday’s game on an assist from Rauenbuehler. Reese tended the net again for the Crusaders giving up three goals on four saves.

Holy Trinity stands at 4-5 on the season and plays host to Danville on Thursday with a 5 p.m. kick.

reaching that milestone. She said the vast majority of the recent surge has been building sales. For the year, the Fort Madison Main Street program saw $47,500 invested in projects, which includes rehab projects and new construction. It also saw 12 district properties purchased and $1,031,220 in acquisitions. They also logged 599 volunteer hours, and 22 new jobs were created. Lori Illner, who serves as the board’s secretary, said ‘she’s one of those members who’s reaching out to potential business owners to open up here. She’s involved in our wine walk, Big Buckle Bash, and she’s always picking up marketing materials when she travels so we can learn about what other communities are doing to promote their downtown. She’s just a good overall volunteer. If we need something we call her and she’s always willing to help.’

Main Street Iowa hosted the 32nd annual Main Street Iowa Awards celebration on Friday at Hoyt Sherman Place in Des Moines. Main Street Iowa has annually presented awards honoring outstanding accomplishments, activities, and people making a difference in Main Street districts throughout the state. Projects large and small are recognized and serve as outstanding examples of what historic commercial district revitalization is all about. Gilbert, Stephanie Knoch (Board President), Lori Illner (Board Secretary), and Eric Greene represented Fort Madison Main Street. "The Main Street Iowa program is a powerful catalyst for local revitalization and community investment," said Governor Kim Reynolds. "As I travel across the state, I see over and over that Main Streeters are passionate, innovative, and creative. They’re also committed to making their downtowns - and our state - a stronger, more sustainable place to live, work and raise a family." In 1985, the Iowa Legislature adopted the National Main Street Center's Four Point Approach to district revitalization by establishing Main Street Iowa within the agency that is now the Iowa Economic Development Authority. Since its inception, the state program and its communities have been considered examples of excellence in the national effort to revitalize historic commercial districts across the country. Since 1986, local Main Street programs have made a significant impact on Iowa's economy, resulting in: The inception of 4,670 new businesses and a net gain of 14,348 jobs; nearly 12,000 building projects reported, totaling a private investment of over $1.85 billion dollars; more than 3 million hours of human capital equating to over $72 million dollars in time and talents, according to the Independent Sector’s estimated value of a volunteer hour.

For more information about Main Street Iowa and how all Iowa communities can access commercial revitalization assistance through the IDRC, visit iowaeconomicdevelopment.com/ MainStreetIowa, email mainstreet@iowaeda.com or call 515.348.6184.

something on the books if you don't think you're gonna get it," Varley said.

Fort Madison Mayor Brad Randolph indicated during the budget meetings that the city may be looking at losing 20 to 25% of hotel/motel revenues off trends of other area cities.

Varley said that Burlington is experiencing the same type of revenue decreases. However, he said Fort Madison's revenues for the past quarter were closer to previous year's receipts.

"We're hoping we make that up. Last quarter wasn't as bad as the first two," he said. "You just never know. We won't get the next quarter until June 15. We did drop the numbers down, but I think we'll still come in below what we dropped it to. We trying to start now to prepare for that."

He said the FMAAA and NLCHS should still be able to get the max funds the city council approved for next year, but going forward there may be some adjustments.

"I don't think it will have a big impact on them right away, but going forward, does the tourism board want to make any changes and reduce that? Because if it's being reduced, there is less money going around, and should everyone share in the pain," he said.

"That's up to them and the council because the council determines how much they get to spend. My guess is they will have a discussion and talk about changing levels. But that won't happen for a while."

But he also said the city will be in a better position in the fund next year because we've got money in there we've transferred out for construction of the platform. If Amtrak goes through, we will have to go back in front of the council for approval and then back to BNSF...and then to the other agencies involved.

"Amtrak has said once BNSF approves those changes, they will move very quickly to get approval. Then that will have to go to the Iowa DOT to get a firm date set for bid letting on the project," he said.

"If I could give you a date on that, you'd be coming to me for advice on the stock market."

Alliant adds to wind energy profile

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa – April 17, 2018 – Alliant Energy’s Iowa energy company received approval to increase its wind expansion program from the Iowa Utilities Board. By 2020, the company now plans to add 1,000 megawatts of new wind energy in Iowa – enough clean energy to power 430,000 Iowa homes.

In Iowa, the company plans to have invested $1.8 billion in cost-competitive renewable energy by the end of 2020. The new wind farms will create hundreds of construction and other jobs while generating tens of millions of dollars in additional property taxes to communities and payments to landowners.

“Our wind energy initiatives help keep rates competitive, enhance our environmental stewardship and drive economic growth in our communities," said Doug Kepp, president of Alliant Energy’s Iowa energy company. "Wind energy is a major part of our transition to a clean energy future."

This spring, crews began construction on the first of several wind farms, starting with Upland Prairie Wind Farm, located in Clay and Dickinson counties in north-west Iowa. Later this year, construction is expected to start at English Farms Wind Farm, located in Poweshiek County in central Iowa.

Alliant Energy’s Iowa energy company (Interstate Power and Light) filed an application for advance ratemaking principles on August 3, 2017 (RPU-2017-0002). The company continues to review the written decision order from the IUB.

Iowa Utilities Board order terms:

The ratemaking principles apply to any new wind facility constructed as part of IPL’s New Wind Project that qualifies for 100% of the federal Production Tax Credits, regardless of its location in Iowa, up to 500 megawatts.

- Cost cap: $1,780/kilowatt, including allowance for funds used during construction (AFUDC) and transmission costs
- Return on common equity used in calculating the AFUDC rate to be 9.6%
- Depreciable life of 40 years, unless changed as a result of a contested case before the Iowa Utilities Board
- Alliant Energy’s Iowa customers shall be entitled to the full value of any environmental attributes, beyond those needed for compliance with applicable regulatory requirements, associated with investment included in IPL’s Iowa jurisdictional rate base. Alliant Energy is permitted to include in Iowa rates the actual cost of the wind project up to the cost cap without need to establish prudence, but required to establish the prudence of any cost in excess of the cost cap.
- Cancellation costs: recovery of prudently incurred and unreimbursed costs, if applicable, amortized over 10 years.
