Seidel begrudgingly steps off council

Mayor Randolph says move is best option for both sides

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG
PCC EDITOR

FORT MADISON - According to Fort Madison City Manager David Varley, 3rd ward Councilman Travis Seidel has resigned his seat on the council effective Friday. Seidel pleaded guilty on June 1 to a class C felony drug charge and received a deferred sentence. Iowa code indicates any elected official found guilty of a felony under Iowa code vacates their elected seat. However, the deferred judgment created an unclear status as to whether Seidel had been found guilty. The deferred judgment carries a five-year probation that, if completed, would wipe the felony from Seidel's record.

Mayor Brad Randolph, who accepted Seidel's resignation, said the city sought two independent legal opinions that both indicated Seidel's plea was a conviction under Iowa law. "The city received two legal opinions stating that, for the purpose of the statutes at issue, Mr. Seidel's felony plea was a conviction, not withstanding the deferred judgment. The statutes we were working with were Iowa Code subsection 66.1A, Iowa Code subsection 69.2(1) (F), and Fort Madison City Code section 1.6.6," Randolph said.

"The statutes require removal under these circumstances. I don't believe Mr. Seidel or the Council had any other option in this matter. Resignation was the best option. I think it's what's best for the City and Mr. Seidel."

Randolph said the council now has the option of appointing someone to fill Seidel's seat or the city could hold a special election. If someone is appointed, that seat would be on the ballot in the November general election.

Seidel was originally arrested Friday, Dec. 8, 2017.

Girl Scouts lend a brush to PAW

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG
PCC EDITOR

FORT MADISON - Four members of a Fort Madison Girl Scout troop and some leaders partnered with Sherwin-Williams on Saturday and spruced up the front to the PAW no-kill animal shelter.

In temperatures higher than 90 degrees, leaders and girls from Troop 9406 in Fort Madison crawled all over the front of the animal shelter and put a new coat of paint on the metal front of the building.

Lisa Engeman, the store manager at Sherwin-Williams in Keokuk, said the company does a community service project every year.

"We have to do a community service project for national paint week every year," Engeman said. "I wanted to do here. I adopted from here, my sales rep adopted from here, too. So we thought this was a good project. The shelter got new siding on three sides, but budget constraints stopped them from doing the front so we're just trying to freshen it up and make it match what they already had.

Engeman said they also painted the shed in front of the facility.

It was time for Seidel to resign from office

As an elected official, you have an inherent responsibility to keep the trust of the electorate and to do your best to represent those that cast a ballot in your favor. When you put your name on a ballot you also open yourself up to public scrutiny of your actions and sometimes those actions include what you do in your own home.

Talk about dicey.

Third ward councilman Travis Seidel, was sentenced on June 1 as part of a plea deal for selling opioids, four pills, to a contractor who was doing work on his property. Fort Madison City Manager David Varley announced Seidel's resignation on Friday afternoon.

Seidel has said publicly that he doesn't deny taking money from the contractor, but his most recent statements seem to indicate that he thought the money may have been for past loans he made to the contractor. He said he received money from the contractor on the day that he gave him the pills, but said the amount wasn't reflective of the value of the pills so he thought the contractor was paying him money back. He has not made any statements with regard to whether or not he clarified that with the contractor. That's a big deal.

Girl scouts also adopted plot at Riverview Park Flag pole

Sherwin Williams donated all the paint and brushes for the project. Stephanie King, the troop’s leader, along with Brooke Patton, said part of the girl scouts’ activities are doing community service projects such as donating food to the local food pantry and hospitals.

“We also adopted the garden around the flagpole in Riverview park and provided the gardening work there.”

The high temperatures kept the girls from being on the project too long at one time. The girls rotated from painting to finding shade and playing with some of the dogs that were chained up outside.

“It’s pretty hot out. They’ve been helping where they can reach but they’ve also been spending time with the animals,” Engemann said.

The shelter is currently housing over 120 dogs and 90 cats.

Crusaders down Danville, W-MU to end five-game stretch

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG
PCC EDITOR

WEST POINT - The Holy Trinity Catholic boys baseball team ended a heavy week of baseball on a good note. After a five-game stretch that started Monday, the Crusaders downed Danville 12-3 on Thursday and came back on Friday to beat Winfield-Mt. Union in five innings 12-1.

On Thursday, freshman Kadin Medland went 4 2/3 innings giving up three runs on four hits, while striking out five. Jason Thurman came on in relief and threw 2 1/3 of shutout ball, surrendering just two hits and striking out one.

Senior Collin Thornton had two doubles and a single going 3-for-4 at the plate with three RBI and three runs scored. He also had a stolen base to lead the Crusaders offensively. Sophomore Reed Fehseke went 1-of-3 at the plate with two runs scored and two RBIs. Cole Thornton had two hits and Kyle Bredemeyer added a hit.

Danville trailed just 4-3 after four innings, but Thurman came in a slammed the door, while the Crusaders’ bats got hot in the later innings.

Fehseke and Collin Thornton both reached to start the inning, with Thornton hitting one of his doubles to drive in Fehseke. Thornton would swipe second and come around to score on Bear error. The Crusaders tacked on six in the bottom of the sixth with Quentin Schneider, Fehseke, Thornton, Vason Thurman, Bredemeyer, and Medland all touching home on just three hits. Danville pitchers gave up three walks and hit batsman in the inning to set the final score at 12-3.

“We were a little sluggish coming out tonight, but the boys did a good job adjusting and scoring runs when we needed them,” Schinstock said. “It’s been a long week of baseball with games every night, but the team did a good job to-night fighting through the soreness and getting another win.”

On Friday, the Crusaders wasted no time putting away the Wolves. Cole Thornton took the bump and went the distance for the HTC giving up just one unearned run on two hits and fanning five.

Fehseke carried the load offensively getting 3-for-4 with two doubles. Senior Zander Schweiss went 3-for-3 with a double, and Bredemeyer had two hits for Holy Trinity.

The Crusaders sealed the game with a five-run bottom half of the fourth. Fehseke lined a single down the third baseline and squared second. Collin Thornton hit a liner down to third base that was mishandled allowing Fehseke to get to third. Bredemeyer then drove them both in with a single to the opposite field in right, and advanced to second on the throw home to try and catch Thornton. Vason Thurman flew out to center for the first out.

Cole Thornton reached on a fielders choice and Bredemeyer stole third coming around to score on passed ball. Thornton advanced to third on the same passed ball and then scored the final run on another error at third base on a hit by Garrett Hannum.

“We did a great job tonight coming out and getting hits early,” Schinstock said. “The whole team did a nice job putting the ball in play and hitting the ball hard.”

The Crusaders are now 6-10 and will host New London on Tuesday.
Seidel’s attendance at city council meetings, although improved, is still less than stellar. Even giving him the benefit of the doubt on the exchange of money, which he was entitled to as part of the court proceedings, giving opioids to another person isn’t conduct becoming of a councilman. However, it’s not conduct that most average people have not done in their lifetimes. And it doesn’t fail thin that this instance was made bigger than it probably would have been in someone in not such a position.

Seidel claims outright that he was set up. That this was somehow revved by his political stances and he was “enticed” into selling the pills. It’s hard to say in this country and this day and age, that that’s unheard of because it’s not.

But we’re talking about a person selected by voters to represent them in an upstanding fashion with the city’s best interests at heart. Poor attendance made us question commitment, but giving opioids away to a handyman makes us question decision making. Irregardless of what Seidel feels is at work behind the scenes, it’s a bad decision that can’t be explained away when you admit to that distribution.

When Seidel reached a plea deal there wasn’t a single official in the state that was willing to comment on whether that plea deal amounted to a conviction. If Seidel had been removed, instead of resigning, he may have had a lawsuit because Lee County Attorney Ross Braden said Iowa code in some cases says a deferred judgment constitutes a conviction and in others it doesn’t, and he wasn’t aware of any case law that gave proper direction. If Seidel’s not convicted of a felony, there would no grounds to remove him, other than City Code which allows the removal by 2/3 of the council vote, after a hearing “for wilful misconduct or maladministration of his office”.

The city would have a pretty good argument that agreeing to a plea deal on a felony drug charge would constitute willful misconduct because of the admission of the crime, but not for agreeing to the plea deal.

But considering all the pieces of the story, putting plan and think freely, you end up just the way I did, “ he said. "I hope people and fellow council see this now and proceed with caution.”

Seidel said he believes he was enticed by a private contractor who was experiencing pain and provided four pills to the contractor who left money on the table. More money, Seidel said, than the pills were worth. He said the contractor owed him money personally and didn’t consider the money payment for the pills.

“I do apologize to all that were effected by this, and I thank the many people for their support through this,” he said.

and charged with two counts of distributing hydromorphone, also known as Dilaudid, Hydrosat, Palladone, Dillys, and hospital heroin, within 1000 feet of a school. He posted bond and was released the same day.

Seidel, who has never denied the charges, said Friday night he believes the arrest from the incident was a set up.

"I believe this whole thing was a set up. From my political views, from the reason I was charged, all the way to my resignation. If you don't go along with the plan and think freely, you end up just the way I did," he said.
