Flood crest predicted this weekend

Two walkers get their steps in despite flooded conditions and a closed Riverview Park Thursday afternoon. The sandbags are protecting the Riverview Park pavilion from the high waters that are expected to crest this weekend.

Floodwaters causing issues at water treatment plant

FORT MADISON - Recent heavy rains and flooding has water saturating Fort Madison's Riverview Park and causing some headaches for city workers, but so far, residents have been unaffected.

Fort Madison Public Works Director Larry Driscoll said a check valve is stuck open at the waste water treatment plant that is allowing water to back up into the facility, causing a few headaches.

“We’re sand bagging to make sure it won’t interfere with screen and won’t affect residential services. It's strictly operational,” Driscoll said. “It’s always a headache when you’re dealing with flooding. Since we’re still a combined sewer, any rain event causes havoc for crew at the treatment plant.”

When the rehabilitation budget for the third phase of the work at the treatment plant came in $3 million over the $15 million budget, Driscoll said the city had to pare back the scope of the project and flood mitigation measures were part of the cuts.

“We had to downsize the floodwall and we did some things operationally to make up the shortfall, but even if we had the floodwall in, we would still have issues because of the check valve that is stuck open,” he said.

The check valve is either stuck open with debris from the backflow of flood waters or may be from some debris from the rehabilitation work, Driscoll said he couldn’t be sure what was causing the problem.

Lee County Emergency Management coordinator Steve Cirinna said a river crest is expected to occur over the weekend at just over 21 feet. He said flooding should be contained to low lying areas such as Riverview Parks in both Montrose and Fort Madison.

City Manager says LCEDG request not responsible

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG
PCC EDITOR

FORT MADISON - Fort Madison City Manager David Varley wrote a memo this week to the Fort Madison City Council advising that a current funding request from Lee County Economic Development Group last month doesn’t seem to be a responsible request. In the memo, issued as part of the information City Councilors have prior to regular meetings, Varley said funding at the level requested by the LCEDG would be tough for the city to absorb.

At an August meeting in front of the council, LCEDG CEO Joe Steil made the request for funding at a rate of $50,000 per year for the next five years. In 2014 the city made a commitment to the group for the same amount of money, but scaled that back in 2017 to $25,000 due to a loss of about $300,000 in revenues from Catfish Bend Casino that the city no longer receives. The current budget year does not have a contribution allocated due to revenue shortfalls, which would leave the city’s commitment to LCEDG one year short.

At the same August meeting, Steil asked the city to continue its contribution of $50,000 for another five years through 2023, but said he understood that cities to operate within their budgets and these types of contributions have to be measured on an annual basis.

Varley said the city should honor its commitment but at a rate more reflective of the city’s current financial status.

“It seems fair that the city should honor this request, but at a level that is more responsible to our financial condition,” Varley wrote in the memo.

According to financial data included in the memo, in addition to the loss of the $300,000 in riverboat revenues, the city was down $292,000 in revenue at the end of the 2017-18 fiscal year, and sales tax revenues were also off about $242,000 for a combined reduction in revenue of $534,000.

Varley also indicated that in the first quarter of this fiscal year, the city has seen a drop of about 14% in sales tax compared to last year.

“If this trend continues, it could be an annual loss of...

about $200,000, which would have to be made up by reduced spending,” Varley wrote. He wrote if the council decides to contribute to LCEDG, depending on the amount, it may mean making reductions that could have a detrimental effect on the services the city provides to citizens. “Contributing the same amount as when our revenue was $800,000 higher than it is now, and is still dropping, does not seem like a responsible request, or a fiscally prudent action for the City to take.” The council will take up the action at its Tuesday meeting starting at 5:30 p.m. in Council Chambers.

State funds are available for residential help

“Fort Madison’s park is shut down because the water is backing up into the main storm drains,” Cirinna said. “At Montrose, the road at River Park will be covered before the river crests, but it shouldn’t have any major effect on the public, unless we were to get some more heavy rains, which aren’t predicted right now.”

He said if the area were to get any more heavy rains, flash flooding would occur because the ground can’t absorb any more water and residents should be aware of that should any additional heavy rains hit the area.

Cirinna also said Iowa Individual Assistance has been activated due to the flooding if applicants meet 200% of the federal poverty guidelines for the number of people in the household. However, he said he’s not aware of any residential issues cause by the flooding other than some possible basement backup.

“Nothing’s been reported. Generally with this type of flooding, they may get some in the basement. That is a state program, not FEMA (Federal Emergency Management Agency), so no federal declaration is required for this type of assistance. Right now with this, at this point, I don’t anticipate presidential declarations and with current river projections this shouldn’t be a long-term issue,” Cirinna said.

Drscll said the city has barricades up between 11th and 14th streets along 20th Avenue and residents should try to avoid those areas if possible. He also said motorists should stay out of Riverview Park. He said anyone wanting to observe or photograph the flooding should use the 10th street walkover.

“That’s a pretty good view of everything from up there.”

Updated information on localized flooding can be obtained by clicking https://water.weather.gov/ahps2/index.php?wfo=dvn.

Sandbags keep encroaching waters from the Riverview Park pavilion on Thursday afternoon. Officials say, barring any additional heavy rainfall, the river should crest about 217” this weekend and then slowly recede.
Bloodhounds sweep Mepo and Eddyville; Crusaders go 6-0 at round-robin event

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG
PCC EDITOR

MEDAPOLIS - It took 30 points to avoid a tiebreaker third set, but Holy Trinity Catholic was able to find that point Thursday night on a Taylor Boeding kill to give Holy Trinity a two-set win over Fort Madison 25-19, 30-28.

The win came as part of three-match quadrangular at Mediapolis Thursday night where the Lady Crusaders and the Bloodhounds both swept their first matches of the night and faced each other in the second round of the round-robin event with Eddyville-Blakesburg-Fremont and Mediapolis.

In the matchup of the cross-town rivals, Holy Trinity never trailed in the first set, going up by as much as 13-3 behind seven straight service points from senior Emily Box. Five of those points were on Bloodhound errors. But FMHS would rebound and go on a 6-2 run to close the gap to 15-9. Senior Jassmine Bass had a block and senior Kaeli Hutson had a kill from the left side, followed by an ace from junior Gracie Pumphrey. Pumphrey missed on her next serve and Boeding missed serving the side out. HTC senior Eryn Anderson got a kill in the next point, then missed in the next rally to cut the lead to six.

Holy Trinity would stretch the lead to 11 at 21-10, but the Hounds would fight back with a 7-1 run, cutting the lead to just five at 22-17 forcing a timeout by Head Coach Melissa Freesmeier after FMHS senior Josie Pumphrey served up an ace.

Out of the break, Box got a kill to swing the momentum and Fort Madison had a kill go long before Boeding got a kill to end the game 25-19.

Game two was a back-and-forth affair with Fort Madison jumping out to a 2-0 lead. Holy Trinity would tie it at 2 when FMHS junior Jillian Wiseman’s kill went deep. Box would get two more points for the Crusaders after the sideout with a kill and a block in back-to-back points to give HTC a 4-2 lead. Fort Madison responded with a 4-0 run taking the lead at 5-4 on a Braxtyn McGhghy ace. Boeding had a kill go wide to give the Bloodhounds a 4-0 run taking the lead at 5-4 on a Braxtyn McGhghy to give HTC a 4-2 lead. Fort Madison responded with the sideout with a kill and a block in consecutive points to make it 19-14 Fort Madison.

The two teams traded sideouts for the next six points, but a kill from Hutson extended the Hounds’ lead to 17-11 advantage. Anderson would find the floor with two kills to cut it to 17-13, but then Wiseman took her turn at the net with a block and a kill in consecutive points to make it 19-14 Fort Madison.

The point. Boeding would score on a kill in the next point from her left outside hitter post to tie it up at six. Fort Madison would then get a four-point cushion at 13-9 forcing Freesmeier to take another time out on the heels of two straight kills from Jassmine Bass.

The Crusaders would score out of the timeout on a kill, but Fort Madison would put three straight on a Bass kill and two missed attempts at the net from HTC, giving the Hounds a 17-11 advantage. Anderson would find the floor with two kills to cut it to 17-13, but then Wiseman would take her turn at the net with a block and a kill in consecutive points to make it 19-14 Fort Madison.

The two teams traded sideouts for the next six points, but a kill from Hutson extended the Hounds’ lead to 22-17. Holy Trinity would then put together the one run they needed to get back in the match, outscoring the Bloodhounds 8-3 to knot the score at 25-all. In the run, the Bloodhounds had five errors, including a rare foot-fault on a Gracie Pumphrey serve. The Crusaders had a block and a kill from Anderson in the run.

Wiseman and Box would then go high-octane at the center of the net with Wiseman getting the first shot. Box would counter with a kill on the next point and Wiseman would return fire on the next point to give Fort Madison a 27-26 lead. Box would counter at the center of the net on a blast to the right side of the floor to tie it back at 27. HTC’s Mya Lawlor would throw an ace for a 28-27 lead but then misplace the following serve on the short side of things to tie it back at 28-all.

In the next point, Josie Pumphrey had to take the third hit over with a bump from the left middle floor that sailed long. HTC sophomore Bailey Hellweg served at 29-28 and after a short rally, Boeding’s attack went off the hands of the Fort Madison defense and landed softly along the Hounds right boundary for the win.

“Holy Trinity was a tough back-and-forth match. We missed a serve when we had game point along with a hitting error, or we could have won the second game and taken it to a third. It was a good hard-fought match,” said FMHS Head Coach Kent Bailey.

Fort Madison downed Mediapolis 25-21, 25-21 in their first match of the night, and then knocked off Eddyville in the last match of the night 25-17, 25-11. Bailey said the Hounds were able to sub liberally and gave all the girls a chance to see action.

“It was a good tournament to end the regular season,” he said. “We played three good opponents and that should help us as we prepare for regionals. Our kids are getting back in sync after a tough two week span in which we lost some tough matches.”

Josie and Gracie Pumphrey led the Bloodhounds from the service line with Josie going 24-28 with seven aces and Gracie hitting 20-23 with six aces. Josie was also tops in digs with 32. Lauren Bailey had 49 assists and Wiseman led the Hounds at the net going 36-42 with 21 kills and five blocks on the night.

The Crusaders won 25-16, 25-17 over Eddyville and cruised to a 25-16, 25-15 win over the Bulldogs in the final match of the night.

Box went 51-56 hitting on the night with 23 kills and nine blocks. She also led HTC from the service line going 36-38 with seven aces. Mya Lawlor and Elyse Pothitakis combined for 56 digs on the night to lead the Crusaders defensively. Freshman Kassi Randolph and Hellweg combined for 55 assists. Anderson was 36-39 attacking with 17 kills.
