I stopped by to visit with Kumar Wickramasingha at the Elliott Test Kitchen on Monday after Sunday night's heavy snow storm. He was in back shoveling about six inches of snow off the small sidewalk that leads to the north alley behind the storefront.

I didn't really care, I had the Beast in 4-wheel drive and had just done a drive around the county to assess the damage from the storm Monday night. Not much.

Kudos to the State Department of Transportation and county officials for keeping roadways passable and getting people's vehicles out of ditches in a timely fashion.

A great job was done by all.

Wickramasingha came back in after I had taken a seat at the counter near the front kitchen. I wanted to talk about the new cookbooks he was peddling for the test kitchen. He's had some nice press on these books that are scripted out by students in the program. The book also features the smiling faces of each student who scripted out the recipe, in most cases showcasing the food, as well.

During our conversation, Kumar's cell phone kept ringing with people from around the state calling and ordering the cookbook.

It's no surprise. I've been in the Test Kitchen on many occasions watching the kids put together meals for this event or that study session.

They stay away from the camera for the most part, but you can't resist taking pictures of these kids in the kitchen. They aren't on cell phones... they're not posting anything on social media or texting.

It's a different tack for the Test Kitchen as preparing the meal, the students are more apt to try the food. The students at the test kitchen prepare the food, as well.

"That is something that I was able to accomplish, getting these kids to try the recipes. I tell them they have to try a spoonful or they'll hurt my feelings. They may not like it, but they can say they tried it. That's a sense of pride for me."

He said in today's culture the kids' eating habits are limited. He said it's surprising and almost shocking how many kids are not trying meals they're not familiar with, but when the students at the test kitchen prepare the meal, the students are more apt to try the food. The students also have a sense of pride in cooking and that's where the cookbook idea came from.

He gives credit for the idea of the book to Libby Scholl-Nabulsi.

Sharon Scholl-Nabulsi gets her cookbook signed by Zephan Abel at last week's book signing. Another signing for the Elliott Test Kitchen Young Chefs cookbooks will take place Saturday at 11 a.m. at the Test Kitchen.

OBITUARIES

BENJAMIN ABBOTT CORNELIUS

Benjamin Abbott Cornelius, 41, of Keokuk, IA died Monday, November 26, 2018 at his home. He was born on May 11, 1977 in Hannibal, MO the son of Dave and Kathy Shearman Cornelius. Ben graduated from Hamilton High School with the Class of 1995 and from South-eastern Community College in Keokuk in 2011. For most of Ben’s life he was raised by his parents, Dave and Kathy, and sister, Angi in Hamilton, IL. He knew every inch of that town by spending most days adventuring on his bike. At a very young age Ben grew a love for any kind of sport. He knew all of the players and the perfect plays to make; however, the Cubs, Bears, Hawkeyes, and Black Hawks was always # 1 in his eyes. Every August he would get excited to pick out his fantasy football team and hopefully carry on the tradition of taking home the trophy, which he did several times! He loved sports so much that every summer he played on Chewy’s league in Hamilton with all his buds and he even coached his kids throughout many sport activities throughout the years. He was also a certified coach for Special Olympics.

He was united in marriage with April on October 17, 2015. Ben knew from the time he met April that it was fate. He wrote to her “What started as “like” has turned into true love. I adore you more than words can say”. Ben had a passion for many things in his life. His family was always the first. His daughter, Payten, was the twinkle in his eye. Ben’s family was complete with Payten Jean, 14, Payton Charles, 13, and Bryer Nolan, 9. He was a positive role model for every family. As a family they loved going on new adventures to see the world and make new memories. Trivia night! Trivia night! Eric and Ryan would call Ben immediately. Ben was the one everyone needed to have. His mom and dad taught him well–they knew good music! No one knew electronics the way he did. He was always keeping up with the latest technology. His mother-in-law, Carol, and neighbor, Mary Ann Weirather were two of his favorites that he would go to and set up the latest new thing. Ben was a man of many talents and was not afraid to try new things like square dancing. No words can even express the kind of person Ben was. He was a son, father, dedicated husband, sports player, friend, co-worker, and so much more to many people of our community.

Ben was currently employed at Roquette America in Keokuk. He was a member of First Lutheran Church of Keokuk and also a member of DEC Hands of Donnellson. Ben was an active member and union steward of the BCTGM Local 48G.

He is survived by his wife, April of Keokuk, his daughter, Payten Jean (mother, Dusty Wheeler)of Fort Leonard Wood, MO, two sons, Payton Charles and Bryer Nolan both of Keokuk, parents, Dave and Kathy Cornelius of Keokuk, sister, Angie Witte (Randy) of Pella, IL, mother-in-law: Carol (Frank) Winkler of Keokuk, father-in-law: Billie (Jane) Noble of Canton, MO, brother-in-law: Carson and Corrie Noble of Canton, MO, four step-sisters: Mary, and Barb Kirkenslager and sister-in-law, Mary Ann Jones of West Liberty, IA, Steven Kirkenslager of Niota, IL and Lori (Robert Akers) Gilpin of Dallas City, two grandchildren, Sloan and Spencer Kerkenslager and one brother, John Wibbel of Dallas City.

A funeral service will be held at 10 a.m., Saturday at the Vigen Memorial Home in Keokuk, IA with Heath Fuger officiating. Burial will be in the Oakwood Cemetery in Hamilton, IL.

Visitation will be on Friday from 6-8 p.m. at Vigen Memorial Home with the family meeting with friends at that time.

Laughlin, a retired area educator, who said the cookbook would be a good way to showcase the students’ other talents.

Kumar said one of his greatest senses of pride is when parents send him messages and pictures of food the students prepare at home where families are enjoying the fruits of what their children have learned at the Test Kitchen.

He said the food is an attraction that brings the students in, but the education is the emphasis.

The Test Kitchen is a wonderment of sorts when you walk in and see the different activities going on. Students working on academic programming on the right and preparing meals on the left in the kitchen.

I’ve said before that without true leadership, the education loan “bubble” has no direction to go but out with the cost of a year at a four-year state university approaching $25,000 all in. Most universities are pushing programs to five years and staring at tuition increases as, at least Iowa, pulls back on contributions.

These students are working toward scholarships triggered by strong performances on ACTs and SATs. Many of the scholarships that come with strong performances surpass the amounts given to athletes who get the lion’s share of the press. There’s something to be said for the extra time athletes put in and finding a way to strike a balance between education and sports. But that’s not always the case. College itself is not for everyone and Wickramasingha and the volunteers that put this program on are exposing students to other things including cooking, robotics, and STEM activities.

What’s somewhat lost in the whole operation is the connection to the couple that took in the 20-year-old Sri Lankan who came to America looking for a dream back in 1986.

Jean and George Alton took Kumar into when he came to the country and at the time, Jean was a home economics teacher and George was a local educator. The couple is now deceased, but Wickramasingha dedicated the cookbooks to the two, and was assembled by Molly Dillon.

“Jean Alton was a home economics teacher who took great pride in teaching cooking to her students. Her passion inspired me to bring that love of nutritious, great cooking to students. George’s compassion to provide education to less fortunate students inspired me and allowed me to pursue my higher education... They truly became my mother and father figures.”

The recipes are all recipes that Kumar has created and those that remember the Alpha’s days will be reminded of the award-winning fried strawberries.
