Bonaparte pilot helps corral burglar

BY ETHAN LILLARD

BONAPARTE – Area law enforcement officers have a new friend in the skies.

In what is sure to go down as one of the quirkiest crime stories of the year, a Bonaparte man took matters into his own hands to solve a string of burglaries that resulted in him helping recover more than $5,000 of his own personal belongings, including a stolen firearm.

Owning three airplanes and knowing what kind of vehicle the suspect was driving, Dave Buford took to the air and assisted the Lee County Sheriff’s department with the arrest of a 16-year-old juvenile suspect Wednesday.

Buford, with a second aerial assist and ground support from friends and family, isolated the suspect and then called in the calvary to clean it up.

“It was fantastic,” Lee County Sheriff’s Department Detective Chad Donaldson said.

“I couldn’t have asked for better directions. Ultimately, it ended up with us being able to take him into custody without incident (and) without anyone getting hurt. I don’t think the suspect had any idea that he was being surveilled from the air by this individual. It definitely helped bring this to a safe conclusion.”

Bonaparte’s Dave Buford took to the skies Wednesday to help local law enforcement officers capture a suspect in a string of burglaries in the Van Buren and Lee county areas.

“I’m very grateful for law enforcement, but nobody handles your business like you do. I just wanted to think outside the box and use my resources around me to do what we needed to do, because it’s all about nailing the bad guy.”

City still looking at options during next search

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG

FORT MADISON – Fort Madison Police Chief Tim Sittig confirmed this morning to the Pen City Current, that he will be retiring as the city's chief of police effective May 31.

Sittig started with the police force in late 2016 and has 33 years in police work in Iowa and Missouri and more than two decades as a chief, assistant chief and instructor.

"I haven't been thinking about it for years, but for the last couple months, I suppose," Sittig said.

"I started police work in 1986, so I've got 33 years plus a couple months in, with 10 years as a chief and 9 or 10 years as an assistant chief. When the door closes behind me, I'm going to spend some time with the granddaughter and then see what comes up."

Sittig also had a stint teaching criminal justice classes at Des Moines Area Community College. He said depending on logistics and how retirement plays out, he may look at going back to teaching.

Sittig said he doesn't know what the city's transition will be.

"I got to the point where I've got my time set and I'm working through that process and that would be question for David," he said.

City Manager David Varley said the decision was not a complete surprise.

"He's been kicking around the idea for a while," Varley said. "He's got other things he's been thinking about doing so it's not a complete surprise to me."

Varley said he's looking at several options and agencies for interim assistance, including possibly using the Lee County Sheriff's Department to fill in administratively while the city conducts a search.

"I've enjoyed the friendship I've developed with Tim and I wish him all the best," Weber said. "Going forward, we're here to help any agency in the county that looks to us."

Varley said the search for a replacement will begin shortly.

"I'm still looking at the options about what to do in the interim. We'll start fairly soon looking for a new police chief. It won't be in the next week or anything, but within the month will begin the process," Varley said.

"There may be a temporary assignment to hold us over until we get a new police chief in place. Obviously it takes three, four, five months sometimes to find somebody and do that search. But we'll do the best we can as fast as we can."

He said he's also considering on whether or not he will do the search or if the city will hire a company.

"We don't have a plan finalized yet and we'll let that out as soon as we have a final decision on that," he said.

In a release this morning from Varley's office, he wrote the city thanked Sittig for his service.

"The City thanks Chief Sittig for the service he has provided to the Police Department and the Fort Madison community. We wish him the best in his retirement and future endeavors."

Mayor Brad Randolph also expressed thanks to Sittig and said Varley will be entrusted to keep the department running smoothly.

"I have an understanding the chief has elected to retire from the department and I haven't had a chance to go over the options with City Manager," Randolph said this morning.

"Until I have a chance to do that, I'm going to count on him to make sure the operations in the department run as smoothly as if the chief wasn't leaving. We wish Tim the best in his retirement and I'm looking forward to new possibilities with the department."

City considers bumping sewer rates again

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG
PCC EDITOR

FORT MADISON – A proposal in front of the Fort Madison City Council could bump city sewer rates by 13% starting in June.

At Tuesday's regular City Council meeting, the council will consider a recommendation from Public Works Director Larry Driscoll to boost sewer rates by $.35/1,000 gallons.

The increase is applied to nonmonitored customers, as well as monitored customers' minimum monthly charge for nonmetered contributions. The Basic Service charge per bill would also go up by $4.50 per month.

According to sample increase put together by Driscoll, on an average 4,500 gallon monthly consumer, the monthly bill would increase from $45.98 per month to $52.05 per month, an increase of $6.07 per month or 13.2%.

FAIRFIELD – Fort Madison's team scores might have been towards the bottom of the standings by the end of the Southeast Conference track meet yesterday at Fairfield High School, but multiple athletes collected gold for the Bloodhounds, bringing conference titles to their school.

Fort Madison's boys fin- ished fourth out of the five teams on the boys side with 65 points, while the girls finished fifth out of the five teams on the girls side with 28 total points.

Matt Hellige and Quen- tin Schneider had the best individual finishes on the day, with Hellige taking first in the 3200-meter run with a time of 9:51.90, and Schneider taking gold for the Hounds in the 400-meter hurdles with a time of 56.44. Combined, Hellige and Schneider’s first-place finishes contributed for 16 of the Hounds total 65 points total on the day.

Fort Madison’s 4x400-meter relay team of Brock Califf, Garrett Hannum, Andrew Schaeffer and Schneider placed first with a time of 3:34.19 for eight team points. With the eight points added on, Schneider finished sixth as well in the 400-meter hurdles with a time of 17.61. Schneider placed fourth in the 400-meter hurdles with a time of 1:20.32, and fourth in the discus with a throw of 123-10.

Garrett Hannum, Quentin Schneider, Andrew Sczaeffer, and Brock Califf hold the gold baton after finishing first in the 4x400-meter relay at Thursday’s Southeast Conference track meet in Fairfield.

Persistence and resources led to arrest of juvenile

“We drove around my shop and that’s when we saw the tracks,” Buford said. “We saw the tracks were 53 inches center to center, we could tell it was a smaller vehicle … when they pulled away and the two tracks went to four, we could see one of the paths was really narrow because of a spare tire/donut. As it tracked around, we could tell it was on the rear.”

“At that point in time we knew somewhat what we were dealing with. I rallied the troops and had about eight people out driving around and looking for a car/little truck with a donut on it.”

Buford put out a $1,000 bounty for anyone that tracked down the suspect.

“I got a call from a neighbor that’s a friend of ours,” he said. “My neighbor) said, ‘I think I’ve got your guy.’”

“People had noticed a truck with a donut and we were dealing with. I rallied the troops and had about eight people out driving around and looking for a car/ little truck with a donut on it.”

“After the arrest, Donaldson was asked if he had ever seen anything like this in his nearly 20 years in law enforcement.

“Never,” he said. “Obviously we’ve had citizen assistance, (that Buford) was very good at what he did. Obviously he did some things that are just a little different than what we do. We work under the confines of the laws and things of that nature, so we had to reign him in just a little bit because we have to think of safety concerns and things of that nature.”

With Buford putting in so much time and effort and proving to have above average investigation skills, Donaldson was asked about the potential of Buford joining the task force.

“Mr. Buford is definitely one of those individuals with some training and some direction, he’d be excellent doing the type of job we do,” Donaldson said. Buford didn’t disagree.

“I’d like to assist law enforcement,” he said. “If the law enforcement needs assistance, I’d be more than happy to help.”

Now when tri-state area riffraff think about committing a crime, maybe next time they will look to the sky and see a symbol in the clouds, or whatever Buford decides his superhero logo should be.

“I’m very grateful for law enforcement, but nobody handles your business like you do,” he said. “I just wanted to think outside the box and use my resources around me to do what we needed to do because it’s all about nailing the bad guy.”

That the increase would help pay for Combined Sewer Separation projects mandated by the state. “We have completed about 50% of the CSO projects and we are still sticking with the final completion date, which is scheduled for 2022,” Driscoll wrote. “In order to complete these mandated projects, as well as continue with the ongoing maintenance and upkeep projects required by a sewer system, a rate increase is necessary.”

The city’s last sewer rate increase study was completed in 2012 with a fairly large increase and then another smaller increase in 2016.

The resolution in front of the council would also carry an annual 2% increase in the rate beginning in 2020. Any late paymets would subject to a 10% late fee.

In a related issue, the council will also vote on transferring $113,000 in this budget and in the next fiscal year budget from city water department maintenance and operations funds to the city’s general fund to reimburse the general fund for a booster station built on Bluff Road.
