Officials look at Viking dock funding options

Mayor would rather Viking finance the project for city

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG  PCC EDITOR

FORT MADISON – Options of funding a dock on the west end of Riverview Park that would secure a Viking Mississippi River cruise in Fort Madison were varied at Tuesday’s City Council meeting. The dock, which is estimated at a cost of $1.7 million, is part of the negotiations that are currently ongoing with the city and Viking Cruise Lines. City Manager David Varley said Viking has agreed to pay $500,000 toward the cost of the project leaving the city to fund the additional $1.2 million. The cost of construction is estimated at $1.21 million, but a 30% contingency fund coupled with design and engineering costs of 7% push the total to $1.7 million. Originally, Viking had agreed to pay a dock rental of $1 per passenger for each docking, but Mayor Brad Randolph said the cruise lines will either pay the rental or pay the $500K up front, but not both. He also said the city won’t spend another dime on the project until they know for sure it’s a go. The city has already secured a feasibility study with SmithGroup out of Madison, Wis. for just under $25,000. Varley said the numbers are pretty solid because SmithGroup is one of the top two companies in the country doing this kind of work and have built docks all over the world. He said the agreement would not be exclusive, so anytime Viking wasn’t docked in FM, other entities

Construction crews from Hall’s tear down the former Lee County Conservation District Wednesday afternoon. The district paid $10,000 to have the building razed after seeking bids this spring on the work. A lightning strike hit the building about five years ago.

Historian to look at Victorian mourning customs

Fort Madison library to host event May 23 at 6 p.m.

Submitted article

FORT MADISON – Historian Kathy Wilson will be presenting a program on death and mourning customs in the Victorian era at the Fort Madison Public Library on May 23, 2019 at 6:00 pm. Kathy believes learning about the past can be fun as well as interesting. To prove that point, she draws on more than 20 years of experience to create programs that engage and entertain as well as educate her audiences. Victorians had a different attitude about death than we do in the 21st Century. People died at home surrounded by loved ones, families picknicked in cemeteries on Sundays, took photos with deceased (what’s up with that?) & made jewelry from their hair (yes, really!). They also worried about being buried alive or someone stealing their bodies. This program explores various types of programming, and this was just another idea to help foster that connection to the outdoors.

Youth project brings color to LCCD building

Leadership Group organizes project to highlight conservation efforts

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG  PCC EDITOR

MONTROSE – A drive by the Lee County Conservation District offices at Heron Bend shows some nifty art decorating all the windows facing the highway. It’s not vandalism, it’s actually volunteerism. Area youth, under the direction of the Lee County Leadership Group, painted conservation themes on the conservation district building’s west side windows. And the really neat part is the conservation district staff can still see out their windows.

Elementary students from the county were encouraged to submit artwork with a conservation theme to the Leadership Group. The group selected seven winners who had their artwork converted to a special vinyl material.

The vinyl used for the drawing surfaces only shows the artwork from one side of the window. Lee County Conservation District Director Nathan Unsworth, said he was excited the project was chosen by the leadership group.

“Lee County Conservation was really excited to hear this project was chosen by the leadership group,” Unsworth said Wednesday.

“The project was a fun way to engage children and encourage them to think about the environment in a new way. We try to connect people to the outdoors through various types of programming, and this was just another way to do that,” Unsworth said.

The Family Practice Clinic at Fort Madison Community Hospital is pleased to welcome Family Practitioner, Dr. Tatenda Goronga. Dr. Goronga is Board Certified in Family Practice.

Dr. Goronga was inspired to go into medicine by her mother, who was a nurse in Zimbabwe. Her mother dedicated her career to promoting HIV/AIDS awareness, which had touched many of their family and community members. Her mother set the example for providing excellent patient care.

"It is important to me to really connect with my patients, to get to know them as a person and not a diagnosis. My job becomes more pleasurable and my patients become more compliant when that happens," expressed Dr. Goronga. "I enjoy treating the whole family. I think by taking the time to really listen to my patients, ask them questions about their lives, it becomes a win-win for both of us – it makes my job more enjoyable and sometimes all they need is someone to listen." Dr. Goronga received her Doctor of Medicine degree from Windsor University School of Medicine in Saint Kitts. She completed her Residency training in Family Medicine at the University Of Oklahoma School Of Community Medicine. Dr. Goronga felt FMCH was a good fit for her, getting a strong sense of support and connection with everyone she met while visiting.

Dr. Goronga will join Dr. Kathy Anderson, Dr. Ruth Barosy, Dr. Amy Huber, Dr. Michael David, Dr. William Napier, Dr. Chase Newton, Dr. Josh Struck, Dr. David Wenger-Keller and Nurse Practitioner Amy Walls in the care of patients of all ages.

Dr. Goronga is accepting new patients. To make an appointment with Dr. Goronga, call 319-376-2134.
Stepped up patrols for Memorial Day

PCC STAFF

Memorial Day and the traditional beginning of summer are quickly approaching. Unfortunately, with the increase in summer traffic we will also see a rise in traffic crashes and fatalities. Last year there were four traffic fatalities on Iowa roadways over the Memorial Day weekend; four deaths that may have been prevented. According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) in 2017 there were 10,076 unbuckled passenger vehicle occupants killed in crashes nationwide. A majority of those lives could have been saved if they had been wearing seat belts. The national Click It or Ticket campaign will take place May 20 - June 2, 2019. State and local law agencies across the state will be stepping up seat belt enforcement with the goal of protecting you and your family.

Seat Belt Myth Busters

Vehicle Type: There seems to be a misconception among those who drive and ride in pickup trucks that their large vehicles will protect them better than other vehicles would in a crash. Fifty-nine percent of pickup truck occupants who were killed in 2017 were not buckled compared to 42 percent of car occupants.*

Seating Position: Too many people believe they are safe in the back seat unrestrained. Forty-six percent of all front-seat passenger killed in 2017 crashes were unbuckled but 56 percent of those killed in the back seat were unbuckled.*

The Iowa Department of Public Safety and the Governor's Traffic Safety Bureau want to remind all drivers of the importance of seat belt use. Buckle up every trip, every time!

Art project could become an annual competition

Members of the Leadership Group that helped organize and produce the project were: Katie Wells – Fort Madison Community Hospital; Ashley Thomas – Great River Health System; Amanda Shaw – First Community Bank; Ryan Krebill – Conagra Brands Inc; Tom Wills – Keokuk Municipal Waterworks; and Becca Crew – Advance Home Health.

Wells said it was the group’s hope that the project would attract attention to the building and help bring in more people to learn more about the LCCD programming. But she added working with the children brought a smile to her face.

“It was really fun to be a part of this project. The engagement of the youth was really what made this project worthwhile,” she said.

“Seeing the faces of the children when they were announced as winners and their art work was unveiled was very rewarding to our Leadership group. The art work really improves the appearance of the building, our hope is that it attracts more community members to stop in and learn about programming they offer,” Unssworth said he’s had a great reception from people who’ve seen the work.

“The response has been great, so far. Everyone is very impressed with the student’s artwork and how it looks on the Conservation Center,” he said.

“This project is a trial run. We are not sure how long the coloring will hold up on the vinyl window covering as they will be subjected to intense sun light. However, it could be something that we turn into an ongoing project with the artwork getting replaced every year or so.”

The project was funded by the Three Rivers Conservation Foundation and Lee County Conservation.

the Victorians’ fascination with death & the culture they developed to memorialize the dead. It is also a timely presentation, the Thursday before Memorial Day, a holiday that began shortly after the American Civil War during the Victorian Era as a way to remember the many soldiers killed in that war. Over the years, it has developed into a day to remember and honor all those who have served in the military but its roots lie in customs from the 1860’s.

Morawitz wants more research before city moves ahead

would be able to use it. Viking is expected to start cruising in 2022. They would cruise July through October with initial cruises projected at two per week through Fort Madison.

Councilman Mark Lair asked if the funding would come from a bond that would require a vote.

Varley said a general obligation bond funding is not the easiest thing to do, but could be done and would require the vote.

Randolph said establishing a solid partnership with Viking is paramount going forward.

“The key for the city is to make sure we have a good partnership and that we don’t feel like we’re spending money where we could end up losing money if something happened down the road.”

He said options have included dollar-for-dollar matches as well as having Viking finance the whole deal and have the city pay them back with interest over 20 years.

“Under that deal our upfront liability would be minimal and if for some reason Viking’s cruises didn’t go as well as they liked in years three, four or five, they’re on the hook for the infrastructure costs. Whether they would do that deal or not, I don’t know.”

Randolph threw out some estimated numbers if Viking were to finance the whole dock project over 20 years. He said the city would be looking at very roughly $100,000 per year.

Councilman Bob Morawitz said he would want to see where the city would see a return on the investment.

“If we do the deal at all we’re going to end up spending $100,000 a year – or even it’s $50,000, where are we going to make $50,000 a year off this. What’s our return on our investment?” Morawitz asked.

Rusty Andrews said it was a valid question with an intricate answer.

“It’s the same question we asked of the Amtrak Depot” Andrews said. Randolph said it’s similar to most incentives the city gives and hopefully results in stimulation.

“We’re counting on a stimulation of the economy because the boat is here. If you’re asking me if that’s going to put $100,000 in the city’s pockets every year, I can’t guarantee you that,” Randolph said.

Varley said there are incentives included as part of the ticketing fare that are intended to keep people in the ports of call.

“It would have to be looked at as a community-wide benefit and that’s what the council will have to make a decision on,” Varley said.

Morawitz said he would like to see more research on the impact of cruises on city economies, even if that research comes from overseas.

The council agreed to keep moving forward with discussions and research and to bring the item back for further discussion.
