RAGBRAI invades Lee County

Pickle-palooza hits Donnellson and it was a ‘big dill’

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG
PCC EDITOR

LEE COUNTY – It was colorful, musical, pickle-al, and sometimes emotional, but a full day of road blocks and riders seven and eight abreast made their way through Lee County Friday evening and most of the day Saturday.

In the Register’s Annual Great Bicycle Ride Across Iowa’s first ever double stop on the Mississippi, riders headed from their overnight stay throughout open areas in Burlington including such tent cities as Southeastern Community College, Edward Stone Elementary, other schools, churches, and even private residences, back through Geode State Park and into Lee County from the north.

The ride was founded in 1973 by Des Moines Register columnists Donald Kaul and John Karras, and the annual bike ride attracts 10,000 participants from across the country.

Riders sporting funky helmets and funny team names raced, while some meandered, into the county through Denmark, down to West Point, then on to Franklin, Donnellson, Montrose, and finally Keokuk for the Biggest Dam Dip on the Mississippi.

Kelly Powers, of Des Moines, stopped for a quick break and cellphone call at the corner of 180th Street (J48) and Hwy. 103 (J40) as the rest of the horde made the right turn with the help of Lee County’s finest and headed to West Point.

Powers, who lives in Colorado and has a home in Des Moines, said it was his third RAGBRAI run in the past four years and said the weather was great, but he didn’t understand the backtracking on the last day.

“I was kind of bummed out that we had to back track through the state park. I didn’t really get that, but other than that, the weather’s been great and the towns have been great,” he said.

Powers said Day 3 was his favorite with a 39-mile run that went through Cumming.

“[That was probably my favorite stop on the trip so far],” the 57-year-old member of "Team Roasted Butts" said. The Cumming town really pulled out all the stops.

Riders managed the up and down hills just east of the right turn with the help of Lee County’s finest and headed to West Point.

Hawks look at state as business as usual

BY ETHAN LILLARD
PCC SPORTS

DONELLSON – Central Lee wasn’t ranked, nearly lost against Davis County in the District Championship game, and were heading to play one of the best teams in Class 2A Monday in Wilton. None of that has slowed down the Hawks. After defeating Davis County 5-4 in a nail-biter at districts, Central Lee took down No. 1 ranked Wilton 14-0 in five innings in the substate championship, sending the Hawks to Principal Park in Des Moines for its first-round state matchup against Des Moines Christian. Central Lee drew the No. 4 seed in the Class 2A state bracket, while Des Moines Christian was handed the No. 5 seed.

With tournament play around the corner, but still a whole weekend away, Central Lee’s coaches and players all said that regardless of the fact they are heading to state, nothing is changing for them.

“It’s the same old stuff,” Central Lee Head Coach Shane Weirather said Wednesday. “That’s been the message all year, same old stuff. Keep it simple. It’s not basketball where you’re going to press, it’s not football where you’re going to play a completely different defense.”

“You’ve got to field the ball cleanly, make good throws, you’ve got to make strikes. It’s just the normal things and it’s the normal things that you have to do better than the other team to win.”

The message was the same from the players when asked if there was anything that was going to change in terms of routines or practices leading up to Monday’s opening-round contest.

“We’ll probably just be doing the same thing as we’ve always done,” Central Lee senior captain Tyler Hopp said. “It’s the same routine as always, try not to change anything up.

“We won’t be doing anything different really. Just getting a goodnight’s sleep in our bed and waking up and having a long bus ride. That shouldn’t be too bad, but getting up there and just preparing for the game, nothing too extra.”

Des Moines Christian’s top hitter is senior Brett Shelton, hitting .404 with six doubles, three triples and two home runs. Frankie Accurso, yet another senior, is hitting .324 with 27 RBIs. TJ Stutes has an average of .333 with 15 RBIs with seven doubles. Luke Simmons is averaging .387 with a .484 OBP, 31 runs scored, 18 RBI, two home runs and 31 stolen bases. Jadon Hawk has a batting average of .424 on the year and has more than 20 stolen bases on the year to lead the team.

Looking over the tale of the tape, it would be easy for any opponent to be intimidated by DMC’s season stats. Shelton figures to be the starting pitcher for Des Moines Monday, sporting a 9-1 record from the mound with a .083 ERA. He’s also collected 81 strikeouts and walked just 13 batters so far on the season. Shelton held opponents to a slim .331 batting average over the course of his 59 innings pitched.

DMC has 12 shutouts this year. Two of the team’s eight losses have come against 5th ranked Van Meter (the No. 2 seed) in close contests with the final scores of 3-4 and 5-7. Other losses include Madrid, Ogden and Martensdale-St. Mary’s.

Des Moines Christian has allowed just six runs over the past five contests and five of those were in a 6-5 win over Woodward Granger Saturday. Their last loss came July 9th against Martensdale.

These stats won’t intimidate Central Lee, as nearly every player in the starting lineup is averaging over .300 on the season.

Tyler Hopp has a .463 average, a .522 on base percentage, 37 runs scored, 18 RBI, two home runs and 31 stolen bases. Jadon Hawk has a batting average of .424 on the year to go with 26 RBI and 16 runs with an OBP of .487. Sam Hirner is averaging .387 with a .484 OBP, 31 runs scored and 26 RBIs with seven doubles. Luke Simmons is averaging .387 with an .536 OBP and 26 RBIs. Alex Sandoval has a .351 average with a .487 OBP and 26 RBIs. KJ Skow sports a .343 average, a .427 OBP to go with 26 runs and 27 RBIs. TJ Stutes has an average of .333 with 15 RBIs with a .465 OBP and Evan Pohren has a .333 average and a .452 OBP.

Waylon Weirather figures to draw the start against Shelton, sporting an 8-1 record with a .79 ERA while holding opponents to a .197 batting average.

“Yeah, you look at it,” Weirather said about checking into Des Moines stats. “It’s really the only thing you’ve got to try to find out anything about them. You can look at speed, you can look at all kinds of things on there, but it really comes down to how we play. Less about them and more about us is the way I try to spin it for our kids. They’re pretty versed in QuickStats and they’ll come up with all kinds of stats for me, too.”

One of the biggest things the Hawks have going for them is the fact they flew under the radar all season long and the presence of the home town crowd that showed up in droves to the substate championship. Weirather said having that hometown crowd in attendance again Monday will be a huge benefit for his squad.

“I think it’s big,” Weirather said. “When you look around and see familiar faces, and they’re cheering for you, and you go into a place that you’re not familiar with like Principal Park, it’s got to help to see some familiar faces and people cheering you on.

“I hope people show up like they did at Washington. It was a really good scene, great atmosphere during the game and after the game with people coming out and taking pictures of the state banner and all that. It was really nice to see everybody there and everybody enjoying the moment.”

For those that didn’t follow Central Lee’s season, it’s easy to think the small-town team is blowing away any expectations anyone could have ever imagined. But for the Hawks, this has been the goal all along.

“That was definitely the goal all season,” senior captain Sam Hirner said. “We’ve been working towards it since December whenever we would go to the Montrose gym and hit indoors during the offseason.

Central Lee’s Waylon Weirather gets ready to release from the mound Tuesday night in Washington against the state’s top-seeded Class 2A team in Wilton. The Hawks won 14-0 and now ready to play Des Moines Christian on Monday night in Des Moines.

Greg Foran, of East Hartford, Conn., puts his signature and a message on the Michael Burke Angel Wing board. Burke was killed on the 2005 RAGBRAI run when a tree branch fell on his tent in a storm. It was Foran’s first ever RAGBRAI run. At right, bikers fill up the water bottle for the run to Franklin and right below, riders enter Donnellson on Hwy. 2 to a briny fundraiser.

Patty Barry, of Dubuque, hoists her bike into the air after climbing Mt. RAGBRAI on the square during the influx of riders Saturday in West Point on the last day of the seven-day ride across the state. At right, riders walk through the mist-er set up to give riders a quick cool down.

Scott Nall, a 26-year active member of the United States Air Force, takes pause for a moment in front of one of the monuments at the Freedom Rock exhibit in the southeast corner of the West Point city square.

West Point and then were welcomed to the 2.5 story Mt. RAGBRAI on Avenue D on the square where food, beer and other vendors peppered the town square.

One of the vendors had a line of about 50 cyclists lined up for organic fruit smoothies at Solar Smoothies. The New Mexico firm folows RAGBRAI every year providing the cold refreshers.

“Our boss has been doing this for about 20 years and has built a nice reputation for himself with the ride,” said Aidan Link, who was one of three trying to keep up with the line.

sion smoothie and some want the whey protein for the ride,” Patty Barry, from Davenport, hiked up to the top of Mt. RAGBRAI and hoisted her bike to the cheers of those below the mountain of bikes built around a staircase to the top.

Barry said this is her fifth ride in more than two decades.

“It’s actually a very similar route to my first ride 21 years ago… and you know what… my times are better this time around,” Barry said with a laugh.

She said her group didn’t get to experience much of the Burlington offerings Friday night as they were one of the last groups to get into town and most of the vendors shut down.

“We stayed out by the mall and took the shuttle downtown, but everything was pretty much closed down except for the band. But they were good,” she said. The seven days featured some pretty decent weather, but she said the wind was a struggle at times and day one was pretty wet.

Nall agreed the first day was 62 miles of rain, so riders earned the relatively mild weather the last six days.

“Yeah we kinda paid for the rest of the trip that first day,” he said.

Nall was riding with a group from South Padre Island and said they were also a little frustrated with running back through the park on the second day.

“The route was transparent, but I just don’t know why we had to go all the way through that park again…it was excruciating,” he said.

After leaving West Point on Hwy. 103 riders turned south on 220th Avenue (156) for a pit stop in Franklin before heading down to Hwy. 2 and then west to experience the Small Town Big Dill of Donnellson.

On the way, Adam, Julie and Kathy Hohl had a slough of riders pull over at Harvestville Farms and had a plethora of delights ready for the thousands of new guests.

Donnellson was the meet up town on the 7th day where riders and support teams hooked up prior to the final stretch through Montrose and onto Keokuk.

Riders were treated to everything from pizza to smoothies, ice cream, and sandwiches with no buns, just a dill pickle sliced in half. Chicken salad, bacon cheeseburgers, hamburgers, brats, and even pickle-speared bloody marys.

The Michael Burke Foundation had an angel wing board that riders could sign and Greg Foran from East Hartford, Conn. put a message on the board in support of the group.

Foran was on his first ever RAGBRAI with his wife, Evelyn, who was recently diagnosed with Parkinson’s Disease.

“The people who discovered that have a team on the ride and they say riding a bike can help with the symptoms, so we heard about this ride and came to Iowa,” he said.

“She made the whole run with us, all six days, but she just couldn’t do the last day so she’s in Keokuk waiting for me. I call her my Yellow Rose of Iowa.”

Foran said, with most of the adventure in the side mirror, the RAGB-BRAI ride lived up to the hype.

“It’s everything I heard it was and it’s certainly lived up to its reputation.”

Riders took a deep breath and headed down Main Street to old Hwy. 218 and southeast to Montrose, where the riverfront was waiting with historical presentations, about 800 lbs. of pulled pork, hot dogs and brats, lemonade, and entertainment before the last leg up River Road into Keokuk where they dipped their tires into the river at Victory Park.

Lee County Sheriff Stacy Weber, who had deputies at every turn and on county roads said the day was mishap free for the most part.

“Just a few wrecks,” he said. “I had to bandage one fellow up myself. We had kits with us for this type of injury.”
FM Rotary Club is just 5% short of goal

FORT MADISON – A $100K in 100 days fundraiser has ticked a bit over the 100 days, but officials with Fort Madison’s Rotary Club said the group is just five grand short of its goal. "We kicked off our $100,000 campaign for the Central Park Project back in March, and while we came very close to the goal in 100 days we are still short by a very minimal amount," said Rotary President Heather Huebner. "Currently we sit at $94,891. We are going to try and close the gap in the next couple of weeks, so there is still time to donate to this great cause. We are looking to start working on the bandstand updates this fall after the Summer Concert series wrap up."

Residents, businesses, and industries can help finish the fundraiser by donating in either one of the two following ways.

Option #1 – write a check out to the D6000 HEF (Humanitarian Educational Foundation) Fund which will result in a tax donation letter. This is the route that would need to be taken if a tax letter is requested – minimum amount is $250 for a letter in accordance to the IRS standards. Checks can be written out to D6000 HEF and sent to:

Fort Madison Rotary Club

Fort Madison, IA 52627

You can also make an online donation through a portal provided by Pen City Current at https://www.pencitycurrent.com/rotary/. All funds donated through this link will be given directly to Fort Madison Rotary and transaction fees are donated by Pen City Current.

The Rotary Club uses its annual Picnic in the Park to feed the maintenance and upkeep piggy bank, but with the group coming up on its 100th year in 2020, it decided a larger campaign could help with some much needed improvements in the park.

This year’s fundraising was more important as city officials found termite damage to the band shell. Those repairs to the shell, including repainting, will cost close to $20,000. The club would also like to put new lights in the park at a $30,000 price tag as well as refurbish the Statue of Liberty replica at a projected cost of $12,000. The rest of the money would be held for ongoing maintenance and repairs.
