IOWA CITY — The second pass of Nate Stanley's day easily dropped into the hands of Ihmir Smith-Marsette for a 58-yard touchdown. Remember when Stanley, Iowa's three-year starter at quarterback, wasn't accurate on the long pass? Yeah, that was a long time ago.

It's been a long time since someone other than Stanley has started for the Hawkeyes. Go back to how he was just described.

A three-year starter. That's a rarity in college football these days. Quarterbacks are mercenaries. Lose your job in one place, find a job in another. Don't win a job in one place, find some place where you can start right away. Pack your bags, because someone always has a home for you.

Stanley has avoided being that traveling arm, and has become a comfortable fit. Being the Hawkeyes' starter is his job, and it's been his for a while.

All three of Iowa's touchdowns in Saturday's 30-0 win over Rutgers in the Big Ten opener at Kinnick Stadium came on Stanley throws — the down-the-middle parachute drop to Smith-Marsette in the first quarter, a 7-yard dart to Tyrone Tracy Jr., in the second quarter, and then a 23-yarder to Smith-Marsette in the third quarter.

Stanley's statistics through the first two games of the season — 37 completions on 58 throws, 488 yards, six touchdowns, zero interceptions — are the numbers from a steady arm on a confident man.

You are well-fed if you are a receiver of Stanley's throws. Ten receivers caught at least one pass in last Saturday's 38-14 win over Miami (Ohio). Eight caught at least one on Saturday. "He's playing at a very high level," Smith-Marsette said. "He's spreading the ball around to a lot of different receivers.

"Stanley is just on another level."

Brandon Smith, who caught two passes for 22 yards on Saturday, said it's been great to have someone else carry the load.

"It feels good to finally have a second option to not have to do everything all the time," he said. "You can always count on him to make a play when you need one."

"He's just so accurate," quarterback Spencer Petras said. "You just know he's going to make the right throw."

Stanley's three-year streak also includes the Hawkeyes' 27-24 win over Iowa State last season. The Cyclones had the ball on the Hawkeyes' 18-yard line before linebacker Jack Campbell intercepted a pass with 2:33 remaining.

"We work on that day in and day out," Stanley said of the on-field drills. "We work on all of that."

"And we usually end up making a play," he added.

Stanley said he'll reevaluate his game plan for the South Carolina game. The Gamecocks lost quarterback Collin Holton in their 31-13 loss to Texas A&M on Saturday.

"You've got to be ready for anything," Stanley said. "There's a lot of packages they have in the backfield. We've just got to be ready for anything."

Stanley said his focus is on consistently executing the play-calling. "We're just trying to play our game," he said. "We're not going to let them play their game."

Stanley said he's not worried about the national attention on his game. "I've got a job to do," he said. "I'm just going to keep working hard and get the job done."
Memoir of river trip to be shared at Elliott Test Kitchen

Catherine “Kit” Elizabeth Hayden, 64, of Keokuk, IA, died Saturday, September 7, 2019 at her home.

She was born on May 31, 1955, the daughter of Joseph and Elizabeth “Bety” Wise Hayden. She was the only girl and one of six children.

She graduated from Keokuk High School with the Class of 1973. While in high school she began to discover her love of music as she participated in band, marching band and choir.

After completing high school, Kit began her career in music as a guitarist and vocalist at many gigs in local venues including the Red Garter in Keokuk and Charles in Montrose. She also was a Disc Jockey at the Palace in Keokuk.

A few years later, Kit moved with her mother to Las Vegas, NV where she remained for over thirty years. Having her daughter, Elizabeth, receiving a college degree in paralegal studies and being a part of several popular bands were just a few of the accomplishments she had there.

Kit was an avid musician. She played the guitar, sang, wrote her own songs and enjoyed listening to music. Kit’s name will be added to the Musician’s Memorial in Victory Park in Keokuk. She also enjoyed reading and loved watching the Rodeo Parade.

Her grandchildren were the love of her life and she treasured the time she was able to spend with them. Kit was a loveable, warm-hearted person. She was a kind soul with a heart that knew no limit and loved freely. She lived life through her love of music and family. She will be missed.

She moved back to Iowa in 2015, first to Des Moines, then to Keokuk. She was ecstatic at being surrounded by loved ones again including her brothers, Tom (Mindi) Davis of Keokuk, and Tim (Jennifer) Davis of Poplar Grove, IL, her nieces and nephew, Michael Davis, Mandy, Cole and Luke Davis and Ryan Davis as well as her great-nephews, Briley and Dayton. She was excited to reconnect with her step-sister, Rose Ross of Mahomet, IL, as well as her nieces and nephews in Las Vegas, Linnea “Naya”, Stephen and Joseph “Jay” Hayden, her sister-in-law Karen Hayden of Las Vegas and of course all her loved ones in Iowa.

Kit was a kind soul with a heart that knew no limit and loved freely. She lived life through her love of music and family. She will be missed.

yards on Saturday, smiled when he was asked about Stanley.

"He’s our leader," the wide receiver said.

"Everyone has a role on the team," Stanley said. "And that’s no different from me."

College football loves its slinging quarterbacks, the ones that deliver defining moments.

"And that’s no different from me."

He was sacked on that play.

"There’s always room for improvement," Stanley says in a clichéd tone, and you figure it’s going to happen, because it’s been happening all along.
